36th Annual 1992 DGS Spring Seminar: featuring Marsha Hoffman Rising by Linda Shaddock Rogers

"WHEN RESEARCHING A FAMILY, I VISUALIZE THEM AS LIVING PEOPLE." Marsha Hoffman Rising, guest lecturer at the DGS 1992 Spring Seminar on 28 March 1992, does more than just look at records for names and dates. She places herself among the families to imagine how they think and feel, where they go, and how they live their day-to-day lives. In this way she is able to track their movements and the kinds of records they were likely to create.

Marsha's background in psychology and social work also helps to bring ancestors to "life" (she received a B.A. degree from the University of South Florida and a Masters in Social Work from Florida State University). The people sometimes become so real to her that occasionally there is a drawback: "I accept very little client work these days because I develop such an attachment to these people that it is upsetting when I have to part with them. It's like losing members of one's own family."

Marsha is currently working on a project to identify and trace the origins of the first 1,000 people to purchase Federal land in southwest Missouri. She is fascinated with the type of people this includes. They were the ordinary dirt farmers, like the ancestors of the vast majority of genealogical researchers. This dirt farmer was not sophisticated, rich, or influential. He was easy-going, hard-working, isolated, and did not create a lot of records. The techniques she developed while working on this project, as well as her family research, is the foundation for her lectures designed to teach her audience how to solve their difficult research problems.

Marsha was not the first in her family to be interested in family history research. It was actually her husband who had the interest even before they were married. His family had saved pieces of their past and handed it down through the generations. This instilled in him the appreciation for family history and the hunger to know more. Marsha, in turn, had a love for history. It was not as yet fine tuned for ancestor hunting, but it was enough to warrant a honeymoon detour to the Andersonville Civil War Cemetery to locate the grave of one of her husband's ancestors. She enjoyed roaming the cemetery for the historical significance but was not yet "bitten" by the genealogical bug.

Marsha's conversion to the ranks of the genealogist came on a visit with her family. During a slow time of the visit, the conversation among the family members gravitated to family folklore. With her grandmother present, stories of the past began to unfold. Marsha's husband suggested that a trip to the family cemetery might help jog the memory of the older family members. The cemetery was located on land that had been donated

DGS February Regular Meeting and Computer Interest Group Meeting

Unless otherwise indicated, Dallas Genealogical Society (DGS) Regular Meetings are held in the Auditorium of the J. Erik Jonsson Central Library (Dallas Public Library), 1515 Young Street at Ervay, Dallas, Texas. The Computer Interest Group (CIG) meets one hour prior to the Regular Meeting in the East/West Rooms across the hall from the Auditorium. Visitors and guests are welcome. Meetings are free and open to the public.

Regular Meeting

Date: Monday, 24 February 1992
Time: 11:00 a.m.
Program Speaker: Adrienne Bird Jamieson
Topic: Special Collections and Interlibrary Loan at the Dallas Public Library

Through the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library, you can access materials in other libraries and archives by borrowing materials through interlibrary loan. You can also use the microform copies of the special collections of other libraries and archives that have been purchased by the Genealogy Section.

Adrienne Jamieson, who has been using the collection for 20 years and has been on the staff of the Genealogy Section for eight years, will tell us about some of the materials available through Special Collections and Interlibrary Loan at the Dallas Public Library.

Computer Interest Group Meeting

Date: Monday, 24 February 1992
Time: 10:00 a.m.
Topic: Computer Communications

Come take a look at and learn how to use CompuServe genealogical functions and National Genealogical Society Echo.

The President's Message

by Margret Hancock Pearce

Psssst.
Com'ere.
Closer.
Over here.
Don't be afraid.
Come on.
Closer.
CLOSER!
Wanna have some fun?
I know just the place.
There's lots of talking and occasional loud laughter.
Some giggling, snickering, and whispering.
It's an experience you won't EVER forget.
Really fun people. FUNNY, too!
I can guarantee.....You'll love it.....
As a member of the Dallas Genealogical Society Board of Directors

Very soon now the DGS Nominating Committee will be searching for good people to serve on the 1992-93 Board of Directors. Has it ever crossed your mind that you might like to "get involved" and help out on the board? No previous experience is required.

What are your interests? Do you have some special background or expertise?

Bring your enthusiasm and ideas and join a fun, dedicated group of people who, like you, love genealogy and want to make the Society the very best that it can be.

Don't be bashful. Tell someone on the board that you are willing to serve—Send us a note to the Society's P. O. Box (12648)—Give a Friend your name and have THEM pass it along—Or, tell us "Joe sent me!"—but please tell us.

We'll get the word to the right people and before you know it, you'll be excited about helping DGS become even better and filling the needs of the growing genealogical community.

DO IT! DO IT NOW! Come'on. You know you're gonna love it.

Bruce Moseley, Chairman of the spring seminar is hard at work. He is so organized. Amazing. On Wednesday the 8th, I talked to several of the board and society members. Each and every time I called someone, their first words were, "I just finished talking to Bruce Moseley." Great job, Bruce.

The spring seminar is a great starting place to get involved. There are LOTS of jobs. Many of them are not hard, and they don't take a lot of time; but the old saying really applies: MANY HANDS MAKE LIGHT WORK.

Lend a hand!

Membership Report

by Dorothy Odom Bruce

Membership renewals are still coming in daily, but over 200 members have not yet renewed. We know this is just an oversight, so consider this a gentle reminder. If you have a question about whether you have sent in your renewal, take a look at your mailing label. Does it show "92?" Great, you've renewed! If it shows "91," why don't you sit down now, write us a check, and use the handy renewal form on the inside back cover of this newsletter to send in those dues before it slips your mind again. We know you won't want to miss the March quarterly listing all the new acquisitions in the Genealogy Section or a single issue of this newsletter.

By the middle of March, I will have completed the second update to the DGS Membership Roster that was published last year. The update will list all new 1992 DGS members and up to eight surnames they are researching. If you have an address correction for your entry in the roster, please let me know by 1 March 1992. Sorry, we cannot change your ancestor entries. What's that? You say you don't have a membership roster? We only have a few left; so if you want one of the remaining ones, send your order to me with a check for $3. Updates will come out periodically, but another new roster will not be done for several years.

to the town in the 1880's by Marsha's great-grandfather. As Marsha's aunt walked with them through the cemetery, pieces of the family history came together. Actually seeing the names on the headstones and their placement in the cemetery helped unlock memories. Armed with enough information to begin, Marsha next made a visit to the town's newspaper office. The issues containing the obituaries she sought were located in the newspaper's "morgue."

All genealogists must, at some time or another, make the inevitable trip to the bottom-most level of a newspaper office, courthouse, or other such repository. There she found what she was looking for: the obituary for her great-great grandfather. Although the family "knew" he was an only child, the article told of a sister who attended the funeral. Through further research, Marsha found that this "only" child actually had a total of six brothers and sisters. The two brothers had died young and left no heirs. The girls had married and changed their names but as was later found, still resided within 50 miles of Marsha's family. The publication of this family history was the beginning in a series of over thirty genealogical books and articles written by Marsha.

Marsha's interest in her own family history created a need to develop, experience, and fine-tune the techniques necessary for successful research. By sharing and passing-on these techniques in her lectures, Marsha has gained recognition as one of today's expert genealogical educators specializing in methodology lectures and problem solving techniques. She has been a professional researcher and lecturer since 1980. She is certified by the Board for Certification of Genealogists as a Certified Genealogist and a Certified Genealogical Lecturer. In May 1989, she received the National Genealogical Society's Award of Merit and in 1991 the Federation of Genealogical Societies awarded her the George E. Williams Award. She is on the faculty of Samford University's Institute of Genealogy and Historical Research and is a contributing editor to the National Genealogical Society Quarterly and Ozar'Kin.

Lecture Topics for Spring Seminar

Each of the seminar topics to be presented by Marsha Hoffman Rising is designed to meet the very specific and practical needs of every genealogist. No matter the time period, the kind of problem, or the geographic area you are searching, there will be suggestions and helpful hints to solve your genealogical dilemmas.

Problem Solving Techniques for Genealogists provides a step-by-step model to use when approaching a new or unsolved genealogical problem. By using specific methodology, the researcher can remain focused on the problem to be solved and, at the same time, avoid endless "name gathering," which seldom answers the researcher's questions. Precise examples of how the model works with various common genealogical problems will be demonstrated.

Genealogists often become stumped as to how to acquire specific dates of birth, death, and marriage when their research moves into the 19th century. The first section of Establishing Birth, Death, and Marriage Records before Vital Statistics will suggest substitutes for state and town vital records when they are no longer available. The second portion will provide the more sophisticated researcher with methods for determining those dates when no substitutes exist.

"He is always right who suspects that he makes mistakes." The mistakes in genealogical research discussed in Ten Mistakes YOU Can Avoid in Your Research are mistakes often made by beginners, sometimes made by the experienced, and occasionally made by the experts. An awareness of the most frequent research errors—and the methods to avoid them—will help genealogists who wish to improve their skills and enrich their family history.

DGS Researchers List

The following members of the Dallas Genealogical Society (DGS) have indicated they will conduct genealogical research for a fee. Each person has completed and submitted a questionnaire listing their experience, areas of research and expertise, and answered up to twenty questions concerning their services. The list is alphabetical and does not recommend any one researcher. To determine each person's abilities, consult the key to types of research commissions and availability listed below. If a question was not answered, no entry is shown for that number.

DGS does not endorse or recommend any researcher and is not responsible for their claims, work, or services. This list is provided as a service to our members and to those requesting the names of members who will conduct research for a fee. All arrangements and contracts must be made between the researcher and the client.

When contacting a researcher concerning a possible commission, it is customary to state in your letter what type of service you are seeking. Include pertinent ancestor charts, family group sheets, and any other information that will help the researcher make a determination concerning ability to perform the service, estimated length of time for the research, and estimated fee involved. Most researchers require a set number of prepaid hours. Always include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

News from the Library

In the January newsletter this column reported the shifting of thousands of books from the shelves in the Genealogy Section reading room to closed shelving in the restricted area. This has now been completed. Many patrons are expressing confusion as to what has happened to the books and how to now access them. By understanding what was moved and how to request the books, the process of accessing the books will become easier.

The books that were moved all have numbers that begin R929.3 and are books that pertain to county primary source records in all states. This includes records such as marriages, cemetery records, deeds, court records, etc. The R929.3 books that cover statewide records were not moved and remain in the reading room.

To gain access to these books, first check the card catalog or the LSCAN computer to find a call number. Write down the title of the book and the call number on a call slip. Enter the call number into the computer to see if the book you want is in closed stacks or on the shelves in the reading room. An "S" designation indicates the book is in closed stacks. An "L" designation indicates the book is in the limited access area. Either of these designations is your clue to take the call slip to a staff member and have them get the book for you. (If there is no letter designation, the book is on the shelves in the reading room.) If you do not know how to use the library's computer, please request a demonstration.

Remember, only those books that pertain to a primary source record in a county and begin with R929.3 were moved. All other sources are still located on shelving in the section's reading room.

DGS People

In 1990, two books received honorable mention certificates in the DGS Book Awards Competition for that year: Michal Martin Farmer's book, Adam Martin 1755-1835 and Thomas Roy Musick 1757-1842, St. Louis County, Missouri Pioneers, Their Ancestors, Descendants, and Related Families and Linda Shaddock Rogers' manuscript, Clark County, Arkansas Births, Marriages, Deaths of Arkadelphia and Environs As Recorded 1875-1897 by James A. Fortson. Linda Rogers went on to publish her manuscript; and in 1991 it won the DGS book award certificate in the category of a book on local history or genealogy.

Recently, both of these books were submitted to the National Genealogical Society for review. We are proud to report that the current issue of the National Genealogical Society Quarterly (79:4, December 1991), contains glowing reviews for both books. Linda's book was reviewed by Desmond Walls Allen, a noted genealogist and author from Arkansas. Ms. Allen states in her review, "Family Historians are fortunate that Fortson's record has been made available through Rogers effort. As a transcriber and editor, her work appears meticulous..."

Michal's book was reviewed by Marsha Hoffman Rising, our spring seminar speaker. In referring to Michal's book she states, "The crafting of this work is scholarly...The author has reached the prevailing level of an acceptably compiled genealogy."

Congratulations Linda and Michal! We are proud of both of these DGS members and their outstanding publications!

DGS 1992 Book Awards Competition

Now is the time to get your book, manuscript, or article in for the 1992 DGS Book Awards Competition.

The deadline is 29 February and the certificates will be awarded at the spring seminar, where all entries will be on display. Entry forms are available from the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library or one will be sent to you by mail upon request. Check the January DGS Newsletter, page 5, for the categories and competition rules. (The entry form also includes the categories and rules.) You must be a DGS member in good standing to submit an entry.

Family Histories

Many DGS members have recorded their family's history in print for future generations. Usually, this is our only guarantee, as genealogists, that our work will be seen by others.

One long-time DGS member, Edwin D. Kuykendall, has published Looking Back in six volumes. Compiled, written, published, and distributed by Mr. Kuykendall, the six volumes contain the history of his family and ancestors and his wife's family. He began his research, after retirement, by interviewing relatives for clues. He credits his writing style and documentation to his training and career as an agent for the F.B.I. He says he believes strongly in good documentation and is proud of the heritage he has left to his descendants. He advises anyone interested in helping their family know more about their heritage to get busy and put it into print.

New Recording Secretary

Due to increased demands on her time by her job and the joys of being a newly wed, Cecelia Stephens Martin has resigned as the DGS Recording Secretary. We wish her much luck and happiness.

To our delight, Helen Mason Lu has agreed to fill this vacancy. Helen's dedication to DGS is legendary and the entire board of directors welcomes her and her contributions.

1920 Census Ordered for the Genealogy Collection

In December 1991, DGS placed an order for over 1500 rolls of 1920 U. S. Census and Soundex with the American Genealogical Lending Library (AGLL). Below is a list of the 1920 United States Census ordered. (In the next issue we will print the list of Soundex rolls ordered.) The census and Soundex microfilm is not expected to arrive in the Genealogy Section until May or possibly June of 1992.

The purchase of this film was made possible by donations received from DGS members and friends and from monies raised at DGS symposiums and seminars. This is an on-going project. Donations are welcome and may be made to DGS or to the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library. Each microfilm roll of census or soundex is $15.
