"Let's Get to Know Them-Our Ancestors from Overseas"

The second lecture in the 1998 series will feature John Philip Colletta from Washington, D.C. With a family ancestry of Sicilian, Bavarian, Alsatian, and Swiss, his interest in European genealogy began early during his days as a graduate student in Paris. He ventured into the primary sources of Italy, Germany, Since completing France. his Doctorate in French Literature, he has combined his interest in genealogy with his expertise in history and Since 1985, he has conducted workshops for the National Archives, Smithsonian, and local and national genealogical societies. Dr. Colletta is a faculty member of the Institute of Genealogy and Historical Research at Samford University and of the Institute of Genealogical Studies here in Dallas.

His publications include They Came in Ships: A Guide to Finding Your Immigrant Ancestor's Arrival Record; Finding Italian Roots: The Complete Guide for Americans, and numerous articles in popular and scholarly magazines. He contributed the chart "How to Find Your Immigrant Ancestor's Ship" in the permanent exhibit on Ellis Island. Four episodes of "Ancestors," the 1997 PBS series, featured Dr. Colletta.

Passenger Arrival Records

This lecture discusses the U.S. passenger arrival records of 1820 through 1957 that are available at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., the Regional Archives, and through the many thousands of Family History Centers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints. It explains what facts family researchers need to know to begin their search for an immigrant ancestor's ship, as well as how to conduct the search. Specific examples illustrate how to utilize National Archives indexes, published indexes, and other pertinent research tools. Also addressed is how to find arrival information for the colonial ancestors who came before 1820.

Naturalization Records

This lecture explains the U.S. naturalization process and describes the records that resulted from it, 1790 through the 1920's. It addresses the naturalization of both alien "classes" and individuals, and it provides guidance on how to find an ancestor's records, whether the naturalization occurred in a municipal, state, or federal court. Pertinent research tools such as manuals, indexes, and catalogs are covered. Citizenship in colonial America is also briefly described.

Research in European Records

lecture discusses how This Americans can prepare here in the United States for successful genealogical research in European records. This research can be conducted in person, through correspondence, using microfilm, or via the Internet. Numerous examples address the facts that are needed to get started on European research, how to break through the language barriers, familiarize yourself with the records of the target country, and learn to read the old script. Stressed in this presentation is the importance of writing letters of introduction, knowing the historical and cultural context in which the old records were created, and planning the travel for foreign research. Many examples from France, Germany, and Italy are used, but the methodology and principles addressed apply to all European countries.

President's Message Karen Avery Miller

As we speak, the wheels are in motion to select near year's DGS Board of Directors. This is my third (and final) consecutive year on the governing board of this society, and several other offices will also be vacated by those who have served the terms allowed by our by-laws.

Do you have an interest in becoming an officer or director of DGS? Perhaps you know of someone else who would be an asset in a particular office. The nominating committee has been selected per our by-laws—two individuals from the current Board of Directors and three from the general membership.

I know you've heard us moan and joke about serving on the Board, but it's all in jest—we really do have a great time together! Friendships are made, and support is only a phone call or E-mail away. Each Board member makes a commitment to do the best job he or she is capable of—what more could they offer!

Perks? Well, it all depends on your definition of "perks." The Board is allowed free admittance into each DGS function. Of course, the catch is, the Board works each DGS function, leaving little time for participation as an attendee. Some people may think that being able to say, "I'm on the DGS Board of Directors" is a perk. That, and $1.50, might get you a cup of coffee, unless you stop at Starbucks—then you'll need more money.

In all seriousness, I think knowing that you are helping your Society continue, and hopefully grow, is the best and only perk a Board position offers. If DGS did not have a group of people willing to follow the by-laws and protect the integrity of this organization, then it would soon become passé. And none of us wants that to happen!

So please, think about it—would you like to serve your society by agreeing to take on an office for a year? If you have any questions about what a particular office entails, or any suggestions, please call me at 214/696-2804, or send E-mail to karenmiller@CompuServe.com. I will answer your questions or make sure the nominating committee receives your messages.

Being on the DGS Board of Directors is really an experience worth having!

Special Collections at U. T. Arlington

Gerald Saxon

March Meeting: Lesson Six of the Three R's

Gerald Saxon will introduce DGS members to the rich resources and services available in the Special Collections Division of the UTA Libraries. After an overview of the division, he will concentrate on those sources and collections genealogists will find most helpful in conducting research at UTA. The university focuses on collecting materials relating to Texas and the American Southwest, Mexico from 1810-1920, and the cartographic history of the Gulf Coast and Texas. He will also discuss research techniques that genealogists would use in any large university or research library.

Mr. Saxon is Associate Director for Special Collections, Branch Libraries, and Programs at UTA and an adjunct Associate Professor of History. During his professional and teaching career, he served as oral historian at Central Dallas Public Library from 1980-1986.

Come join us to welcome him back and learn about resources right next door on Monday 23 March in the DPL Auditorium.

DGS News from the Past

From the April 1986 issue of the DGS Newsletter:

Special Event created for the 1986 State Fair of Texas

DGS proudly announces a special event created for the 1986 State Fair of Texas: The Sesquicentennial FAMILY HISTORY and GENEALOGY Exhibit and Competition. This event, co-sponsored by the State Fair of Texas and the Dallas Genealogical Society. spotlight early Texas settlers (before statehood). In addition, students are invited to write about their Texas heritage - no matter if his or her family arrived in Texas on a wagon train or first stepped on Texas soil from an airplane!

Details of the entries, categories to be judged, criteria for judging, rules and regulations are now available. A flyer announcing this special event may be picked up in the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library or by sending a self-addressed legal size stamped envelope to: State Fair of Texas, Genealogy Exhibit, P.O. Box 26010, Dallas, TX 75226.

Daughters of the American Revolution Lineage Books Now Online. All 50 volumes of the Daughters of the American Revolution Lineage Books are now available on Ancestry's Web site. This is a major release of genealogy records in electronic format. It contains thousands of references to U.S. Revolutionary War ancestors and their descendants. It was created from Lineage Books of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution from information submitted by tens of thousands of individuals. For more information on this subject contact the Office of the Registrar General, NSDAR, 1776 D St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006-5392.

Since this database represents a compilation of 50 volumes, beginning with volume 8 and ending with volume 63, the years and locations of copyright information varies, according to each volume. For example, volume 8 was published in 1899 in Washington, D.C., whereas volume 63 was published in 1923, also in Washington, D.C. (Dick Eastman's Electronic Newsletter)

Be a Part of the Past in the Present: Consider Volunteering at Old City Park

Most DGS members are familiar with Old City Park. Your child may have been a part of the 15,000 school children who visit each year, maybe you and your family have attended the annual Candlelight event in December, or perhaps your first encounter was the end of the FGS Conference party that was hosted at the Park by DGS. Have you ever considered volunteering there?

Volunteering at this architectural and cultural museum is a wonderful way to be a part of the past in the present. Volunteers share information with visitors about historic structures and life in North Texas. They provide tours, clerk in McCall's Store, and assist with special events. New volunteers receive training manuals and attend special orientation sessions held four times each year. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer at Old City Park, please contact Michael Cook at 214/421-5141, extension #115.

If you would like to submit a brief review of a book, tape, journal article, etc., please mail to Reviews, DGS Newsletter Editor, P.O. Box 12648, Dallas, TX 75225-0648, or E-mail to hallie.garner@juno.com.

BOOK REVIEW

Footsteps of the Cherokees, A Guide to the Eastern Homelands of the Cherokee Nation, by Vicki Rozema, (John F. Blair Publisher: Winston-Salem, NC, 1995), 396 pages including index.

Written as a guidebook, this informative publication also proved to be a valuable history lesson on the Cherokees and individuals who lived among them prior to the Trail of Tears. The areas covered are the old Cherokee lands in what is now Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, and North Carolina. Looking for a lost town, mission, or burial ground? Struggling to put into perspective the distance between one location and another, or the reasons that the tribe flourished and hated to leave this plentiful area? Ms. Rozema has made the search easy and a delightful experience through her factual travel directions and maps, and by her division of the four state areas into small groupings—these lead you from one location to the next in a given region, all the while explaining in great detail what you are seeing and the historical significance of each site as it impacted the life of its inhabitants.

On a recent research trip, left to our own devices, we would have passed by the former site of the Willstown Mission had this book not been in our possession. Situated in a grove of trees which currently stand in the middle of someone's backyard, the monument and burial ground of my husband's ancestor who founded the mission would have gone undetected by us.

Visiting the mansions (yes, that is correct-mansions, not teepees!) that were home to several Cherokees was an eve-opener. And for me, a white woman, no place was more fascinating and yet humbling than a stop at New Echota, the seat of the Cherokee nation. Most of the multiple former buildings have been reconstructed, and a few originals remain. Seeing the government buildings and the original location of the first Cherokee printing press was fascinating. The original home of Rev. Worcester remains standing. He was a renowned minister to the Indians and a close family friend to my husband's great-grandfather. Family correspondence exists stating that my husband's ancestor often visited and "stayed over" in that very house!

Ms. Rozema has used her professional skills as a photographer to provide the reader with visuals as well as maps, so you can often see the next location before your odometer rolls over to announce your arrival. She was wise to include facts about whether a site requires an admission fee, times of operation, and other pertinent information that can often make or break a sightseeing or research excursion.

This step-by-step guide to life before the removal is an asset to anyone who wants to visit the area, absorb a quick history lesson, and make the most of their research time. The softbound book is available from Frontier Press, P.O. Box 3715, Dept. 1197, Galveston, TX. 77552; 1 - 8 0 0 - 7 7 2 - 7 5 5 9; http://www.doit.com/frontier; $15.95; item no. #IND150. (Karen Avery Miller)

TAPE REVIEWS

I have been thinking more and more of doing a research trip to the National Archives in Washington, However, developing a plan for researching the mountains of materials that are stored there was holding me back. Recently I purchased two tapes from the FGS Conference that was held in Dallas, Texas, in September 1997. These two tapes: National Archives Finding Aids: Finding What? by Craig Roberts Scott, Tape F-69, and Finding Birth, Marriage, and Death Records at the National Archives by Elizabeth Shown Mills, Tape F-107, greatly aided in alleviating my fear of doing research there. Between the two tapes I was able to grasp the set-up of the Archives. You basically start with a three-volume guide that points you in the direction of the sub-guides that outline each collection of records. The Archives are sorted by Record Groups and within these groups they are further broken down. You just need to determine where your ancestor would have come in contact with the Federal Government and descend through the guides until you discover the pertinent records. Both Ms. Mills and Mr. Scott give excellent case studies using unmicrofilmed records that are only available in Washington. These records enabled one of them to find a death record in the late 1800s in France of an American citizen and the other a record of a teamster during the Mexican War of 1846. My first course of action will be to obtain the new three-volume set and begin to make my research and trip plans. (Barbara Dossett)

"Southeastern Indians Prior to Removal: An Introduction Research and Resources" offers many suggestions to researchers searching for their Native American Roots by detailing methods of using pre-removal records. By urging the reader to move beyond stereotypes and looking at the social fabric and political history of the time—especially merging of Native Americans into the Caucasian and Black societies-the author introduces many excellent applicable techniques to genealogical problem. Her excellent maps and introduction to littlepublicized manuscript collections is especially valuable for southeastern researchers of any ethnic background. Lennon, CGRS. Rachal M. "Southeastern Indians Prior Removal: An Introduction to Research and Resources." National Genealogical Society Quarterly 85 (September 1997): 165-194. (Hallie Garner)

Thank You!! Tom Thumb Shoppers

Proposed By-Laws Change

The Board of Directors proposes that Article X of the By-laws be rescinded.

Article X - Special Funds of the Society

Section I. Society Gifts

All pecuniary gifts given by the Society shall be placed in the Special Society Fund Account, unless otherwise provided for in these bylaws. Gifts from the Society shall be used as directed by the board of directors: for the purchase of books equipment, preservation of materials, or other items that pertain to genealogy and research therein. Pecuniary gifts given to the Society shall be placed in the Special Society Fund Account, unless directed otherwise by the donor. If the donor does not specify how the gift is to be used, the board of directors will designate the use of the gift.

Section 2. The Society Endowment Fund

The Society's Permanent Endowment Fund is established and shall be administered for the benefit of the Dallas Genealogical Society within the limits allowed by law, and for the benefit of the Genealogy Section of the J. Erik Josson Central Library or its successor. Donations legal contributions to the Endowment fund shall include but are not limited to, a percentage of the Society's annual net income, said percentage to be established by the board of directors at its discretion. The Society treasurer will invest all monies in this fund in interest-bearing securities; investments are specifically limited to Federal Government Securities or accounts at banks or savings institutions insured by the FDIC or FSLIC. Each year the interest from this fund shall be placed into the Special Society Fund account and used for the purposes set out in Section I or Article X.

This proposed change to the by-laws will be presented to the membershipat-large at the general meeting February 23, 1998, to be voted on at the March 23, 1998, meeting.

Mike Basham Award Created

announcement from An GENTECH98 detailed the creation of new award from special GENTECH—the Mike Basham Award. This award will be given by GENTECH as merited in the future special and outstanding achievement in the application of technology in genealogy. Basham was a popular lecturer, Vice President of the Dallas Genealogical Society, and a USGenWeb volunteer. He was an ardent sponsor of the Applied Technology Award and GENTECH supporter, and he passed away unexpectedly in 1997. This award in Mike Basham's name would appear to be a fitting memorial to his memory and to his many contributions to genealogy technology. (Dick Eastman's Electronic Newsletter, 25 Jan 1998)

Did You Know? by Shirley Stertz Hawn

We are all aware of their world-famous meat pies and Christmas Lights along the Cane River, but did you know there is also a wonderful genealogy library in Natchitoches, Louisiana?

The second floor of a marvelous old red brick building that once housed the Natchitoches Parish Courthouse is now the home of the Natchitoches Genealogical and Historical Association Library.

I recently spent two days there and have never met a nicer or more helpful staff anywhere I have researched. They are all volunteers from the genealogical and historical association, and they are very well acquainted with the records in the library. One of the staff even mailed me additional records she found after I returned home.

I never thought I would find boxes of files on my Virginia Moss, Massie, and Macon families in Natchitoches, Louisiana, but I did. I found copies of D.A.R., S.A.R. and Huguenot applications, English duplicates of Lost Virginia Records, compiled by Louis des Cignets, Jr., and records for people before they migrated to Louisiana. Some families have given their entire research files to the Library.

Their records also include French records dating back to 1776, Natchitoches Parish census records 1820 through 1920, marriage records. mortgage books, census records of other Louisiana parishes, and a few state census records. They have the Natchitoches Times Microfilm records from March 1903 to October 1996, and the Catholic Church records for Natchitoches have been published and date from 1729. Military censuses, Military rolls and Tax lists from 1722-1803 are published and available for reseach.

As you know, Louisiana was purchased by the United States in 1803. Before that, it was passed back and forth between Spain, France, and England for almost three hundred years. It became the 18th state to join the Union in 1812.

Natchitoches County was established in 1805 and included the entire ecclesiastical parish of St. Frances. Some of the present day parishes that were part of this original county are Caddo, Claiborne, Webster, Bienville, Sabine, Desoto, Winn, and Bossier.

If you have ancestors from this area of Louisiana, you will surely want to check the records at this wonderful library. If you don't have ancestors from there, you may just want to spend a pleasant night or two in this marvelous old town, browsing the shops, seeing the old plantations in the area, and visiting the Museum on the first floor of the Old Court House Building . . . on your way upstairs to say hello for me to the people at the Library.

The Natchitoches Genealogical and Historical Association Library is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is located on the northeast corner of Church and Second Streets. Their mailing address is: P. O. Box 1349, Natchitoches, LA 71458-1349; phone (318) 357-2235.

To help support the library and receive two issues of The Natchitoches Genealogist per year, you may wish to join the Association for $15.00 per year.

Dallas Public Library Book Sale Calling All Volunteers!

The Dallas Public Library will hold its annual book sale beginning Friday, May 15, and ending Sunday, May 17, at Dallas's West End. The book sale is scheduled for 9:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. on Friday and Saturday and from noon until 6:00 p.m. on Sunday. This year's book sale will be a fun event with lots of entertainment planned. Large tents will stretch from the entrance of Spaghetti Warehouse at Munger and Market to Record Street.

This is a wonderful opportunity for volunteers to acquire book sale experience while benefiting the Dallas Public Library in this large fundraising effort. Profits from the sale will go directly to buy books and other materials for every Dallas Public Library location. Volunteers are needed now to sort and box books at the Central Library. During the sale, you can work in a particular section, haul books, give directions, or work the cash register. If your group would like to work together, or if you want to sign up as a single volunteer, please call Mary Beth Harrington, Dallas Library's Volunteer Public Coordinator, at 214-670-1789.

How To Find Lost People

The following article is from Eastman's Online Genealogy Newsletter and is copyright 1998 by Richard W. Eastman and Ancestry, Inc. It is re-published here with the permission of the author.

Genealogists seem to have a fascination with online databases of people. While genealogists are always looking for dead people, we also have need to find living people at times. We may be looking for long-lost cousins or for others of a certain unusual surname. The many online databases can be valuable for these searches.

Of course there are many non-genealogy uses as well. Are you looking for a former neighbor or a school chum or an old buddy from boot camp? You may find them listed in an online database. Finally, adoptees may be searching for information about birth parents or vice versa. Here are a few of the online databases that I have used:

The Seeker Magazine says they are "Reuniting America" on their Web site. They have announcements of reunions, messages about adoptees looking for birthparents, ex-military members looking for old friends and many more such messages. It is almost entirely devoted to people who want to be found. You can find The Seeker Magazine at: http://www.the-seeker.com>.

Four11 is known as the "Internet White Pages" and serves as sort of an online directory of e-mail addresses. It doesn't list everyone, of course. But it lists e-mail addresses for almost everyone who has ever posted a message to a newsgroup or to any of several online databases. Four11 is one of the online databases that has listings for people outside the United States as well as many listings of U.S. businesses taken from Yellow Pages and various online sources. It also has an online database for the e-mail addresses and regular mailing addresses of many celebrities. Finally, Four11 has listings for people online at a given moment with Internet telephone capabilities. Look at: http://www.four11.com.

The Internet Address Finder gets its information from public information available through the Internet, primarily through perusal of Usenet news postings. Thus, if you've ever posted a message to a news group on the Net, it's likely that your e-mail address will be in The Internet Address Finder's database. The Internet Address Finder's pages are available in English, French, German, Italian, Dutch, and Portuguese at: http://www.iaf.net.

Snap! Online provides a large database of e-mail addresses at:

http://home.snap.com/search/email/0,12,-0,00,46.html

AltaVista has always been my favorite Internet search engine. It is fast and easy to use. It has always been strictly a search engine, but on Monday of this past week AltaVista announced that they would soon add searches of telephone directory databases, both White Pages and Yellow Pages. AltaVista's new directory service, called People Search and Business Search, will initially be accessible through links on the front page of the search site, but AltaVista plans to seamlessly integrate the directory into users' searches. They are not yet available but should be soon at: http://altavista.digital.com.

WhoWhere is a bit difficult to describe. The site lists itself as "The Way to Find People on the Web" but it does more than that. True, you can enter a person's name and search for his or her e-mail address. But you can also search online telephone directories, including both White Pages and Yellow Pages. WhoWhere also has a link labeled "Find ancestors" which takes you to Broderbund's Internet FamilyFinder, a site that I have written about before. To access WhoWhere, go to: http://www.whowhere.com.

BigFoot is best known for their free e-mail service, but they also provide telephone directory searches and e-mail addresses. The site claims to have "the Internet's largest, most accurate collection of e-mail addresses," although some other sites make somewhat similar claims. Look at: http://www.bigfoot.com.

Switchboard.com is probably the best known of all the online telephone numbers databases. The company has databases of the White Pages and Yellow Pages for almost the entire United States. It also has a database of e-mail addresses and another one for Web pages. In the Web pages database you can type in any Web page you want, and Switchboard will return a list of other pages that deal with similar topics. Recent additions to Switchboard.com include free home pages for anyone on Switchboard's servers and even free e-mail. This site does it all at:

http://www.switchboard.com">.

InfoSpace advertises itself as "the ultimate directory." It has online White Pages, Yellow Pages, city directories and databases of U.S. Federal, state, county and local government offices. These databases include addresses for courthouses, a valuable reference for genealogists who need to write to clerks for records. InfoSpace also has online databases for other countries. The Canadian section has telephone numbers, street addresses, and e-mail addresses of millions of Canadians, as well as addresses, telephone numbers, and FAX numbers of Canadian businesses. InfoSpace also has similar sections for the U.K., Germany, Austria, Luxembourg, Belgium, the Netherlands and Italy, although with generally smaller databases. It also has links to a few other international people finder databases available on the Internet. To access InfoSpace, look at: http://www.infospace.com.

Canada411 lists more than 10 million telephone listings for people and businesses in that country. The listings include street addresses. This is an excellent resource that is available at: http://canada411.sympatico.ca.

If you are looking for an old military buddy who probably is still in the military, check out the U.S. Army's Web site. However, the listings are not available online. Instead, this site tells how to write for records. The Army only has listings for soldiers who are on active duty today. Look at: http://www.army.mil/vetinfo/persloc.htm.

To find college students as well as faculty members, check out the online college telephone directories available at:

http://www.uiuc.edu/cgi-bin/ph/lookup?>

Of course, there are still many people who are not listed anyplace online, but that number becomes smaller every year. If you are looking for someone, try the above databases.

THE GENEALOGIST'S PRAYER

Now I lay me down to sleep, Trying so hard my sanity to keep.

I pray the Lord I'll find the key, To the missing link in my family tree.

Be with me Lord when I reach a dead end, Help me tomorrow to start over again,

Searching for ancestors that long ago died, The doctors & teachers & traitors that spied; The house wives & horse thieves & scholars well read and those who were Hung by the neck until dead.

Lord, you know I've had good intent, So don't let my spouse know the money I've spent, On research & tapes & books by the dozen, Trying to find some long lost cousin.

Or a future genealogist in some court house, May read of me . . . Killed by my spouse.

Let's Get to Know Them

Discovering Your Immigrant Ancestors' Stories

Every immigrant's story is unique! To understand the drama of your own ancestor's story you must examine: 1) the departure from the homeland; 2) the voyage over the seas; 3) the arrival in America; 4) the impact of the immigrant on American society; and 5) the impact of American society on the immigrant. This lecture explains the original records and published materials available to you to discover the particular facts of your own ancestor's story. It shows you how to evaluate those facts and assemble them into a story that conveys both the drama and individuality of your ancestor's emigration/immigration experience.

Dr. Colletta loves the adventure of discovering ancestors and conveys that approach to his audience. With all of his knowledge and expertise, it is his wit and humor that distinguishes his presentations. You won't want to miss these lectures, whether your ancestor came to Jamestown in 1607 or Ellis Island in 1907. You will gain the knowledge to recreate that experience in your own family history.

Join us on Saturday, 25 April, at the Lovers Lane Methodist Church, Asbury Hall, for a most informative and entertaining day.

Standards for Using Records Repositories and Libraries Recommended by the National Genealogical Society

Recognizing that how they use unique original records and fragile publications will affect other users, both current and future, family history researchers habitually-

- are courteous to research facility personnel and other researchers, and respect the staff's other daily tasks, not expecting the records custodian to listen to their family histories nor provide constant or immediate attention.
- dress appropriately, converse with others in a low voice, and supervise children appropriately.
- do their homework in advance, know what is available and what they need, and avoid ever asking for "everything" on their ancestors.
- use only designated work space areas, respect off-limits areas, and request permission before using photocopy or microform equipment, asking for assistance if needed.
- treat original records at all times with great respect and work with only a few records at a time, recognizing that they are irreplaceable and that each user must help preserve them for future use.
- treat books with care, never forcing their spines, and handle photographs properly, preferably wearing archival gloves.
- never mark, mutilate, rearrange, relocate, or remove from the repository any original printed, microform, or electronic document or artifact.
- use only procedures prescribed by the repository for noting corrections to any errors or omissions found in published works, never marking the work itself.
- keep note-taking paper or other objects from covering records or books, and avoid placing any pressure upon them, particularly with a pencil or pen.
- use only the method specifically designated for identifying records for duplication, avoiding use of paper clips, adhesive notes, or other means not approved by the facility.
- unless instructed otherwise, replace volumes and files in their proper locations.
- before departure, thank the records custodians for their courtesy in making the materials available.
- follow the rules of the records repository without protest, even if they have changed since a previous visit or differ from those of another facility.

On the Lighthearted Side of Research

Subject: German lesson

Here it is—the latest news from Europe. The News Standard has received this bulletin fresh from our Brussels-based hack. The European Union commissioners have announced that agreement has been reached to adopt English as the preferred for European language communications, rather than German, which was the other possibility. As part of the negotiations, Her Majesty's Government conceded that English room spelling had some improvement and has accepted a five-year phased plan for what will be known as EuroEnglish (Euro for short).

In the first year, "s" will be used instead of the soft "c." Sertainly, sivil servants will resieve this news with joy. Also, the hard "c" will be replaced with "k." Not only will this klear up konfusion, but typewriters kan have one less letter.

There will be growing publik enthusiasm in the sekond year, when the troublesome "ph" will be replaced by "f." This will make words like "fotograf" 20 per sent shorter.

In the third year, publik akseptanse of the new spelling kan be expekted to reach the stage where more komplikated changes are possible. Governments will enkourage the removal of double letters, which have always ben a deterent to akurate speling. Also, al wil agre that the horible mes of silent "e"s in the languag is disgrasful, and they would go.

By the fourth year, peopl wil be reseptiv to steps such as replacing "th" by "z" and "w" by v.

During ze fifz year, ze unesesary "o" kan be dropd from vords kontaining "ou," and similar changes vud of kors be aplid to ozer kombinations of leters. After zis fifz yer, ve vil hav a reli sensibl riten styl. Zer vil be no mor trubls or difikultis and evrivun vil find it ezi tu understand ech ozer. Ze drem vil finali kum tru.

Internet Site of the Month

By Art Rubeck

The first site chosen by the late Mike Basham when he began the DGS Internet Site of the Month was Cyndi Howells' Home page, which now has over 26,800 genealogy links. While many feel that this index of sites is the place to begin your search of the Internet for its genealogy content, it can be overwhelming to many who are just finding this new tool. A simpler start might be much easier.

One such site is Richard Wilson's Other Genealogy Web Site, one of the sites featured at the GENTECH98 Conference in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

You will find it http://www.compuology.com. It is a directory, not an index, breaking the many genealogical sites into nineteen categories, thus making it much simpler to use as your initial contact with the Internet. Instead of keeping long lists of addresses in your own computer, you could consider using just this as your address book. It is already categorized, it is kept up to date, and you won't make any entry mistakes when you select a source to try out.

Recent Acquisitions of the DPL Genealogy Section

[Keep in mind that you can put these newly acquired materials on the shelves by making a tax-deductible contribution to the DPL's "Adopt-A-Book" program. For as little as $5.00, you may select a book and cover the cost of binding it. See the Library staff in the Genealogy Section for more information.]

FINALLY!!!

After two years of planning, a new DGS-sponsored project is officially underway.

On 2 Dec 1997, Dallas County Commissioners approved Court Order No 97-2398 granting approval for the Dallas Genealogical Society to conduct an inventory of Dallas County records. Records to be inventoried include those within the custody of the County Clerk, County Judge, District Attorney (civil records), District Clerk, Justices of the Peace, and the Tax Assessor/Collector.

Although the records of several Texas counties were inventoried by the state back in the 1970's, an inventory of Dallas County records has never been officially completed. It is anticipated that the output of this project will be useful to Dallas County historians and researchers, as well as to Dallas County officials. Some of the results may be placed on-line as well as in hard-copy format.

Data will include descriptions of the various records, with associated time spans for the records, their retention periods, whether they have been microfilmed, and their availabilty.

Team members Shirley Sloat, Dr. Alan Miller, and Jim Monaghan will be working with Dallas County Records Manager Lois Dillard on this project, which is projected to take two years.

Computer Keyboard Tip: Using the Print Screen Key

Karen Avery Miller

If you're a computer nerd, you probably already know what I am about to say—so stop laughing at my excitement over this newly found computer tip. But if you're a "computer nerd wanna-be," as I shall remain for life, then check out what I recently read in the January issue of Family Tree Maker Magazine.

Have you ever wanted to print out a copy of exactly what appears on your screen? Exactly—not what a particular program defaults to when you use the print command, but exactly what is shown on your monitor screen. In the Technical Support Q&A column, Ask Helen, on page 8 of the above-mentioned publication, concise directions are given as to how to accomplish such a feat. Let me paraphrase here, for those who do not receive this magazine:

- (1) In any program, when you are looking at a particular screen that appeals to you, press the Print Screen key on your computer keyboard. I use an IBM standard keyboard and this key is next to F12. Just strike the key once; it will seem as if nothing has happened, but in reality, your Windows Clipboard has taken a picture of your screen and is retaining it in its memory until you complete the next step.
- (2) Open a new document in your word processor or graphics program. If you do not have one of these, use the "Write" or "Wordpad" program, both of which are included with your Windows operating system.
- (3) With your cursor blinking in the new document, go to the Edit menu and select Paste.
- (4) Voila! A complete image of your screen should now appear in the new document. If your program supports sizing, you may want to use the small black boxes along the edge of the image to make yours bigger or smaller. Some programs also allow cropping; check the specifics of your program.

(5) Now you can save and print this screen shot, just as you would any image or document.

To do another Print Screen, you will need to repeat the process in steps 1-5

To me, this is so cool! You can do this from any program or CD, not just a genealogy program. Many times I have wished I could do this, not knowing the task was a simple keystroke away. Give it a try—it's easy!

NGS Releases New Standards

The (U.S.) National Genealogical Society has released the first two of a series of standards for genealogical researchers. The society hopes that these will be broadly disseminated and taken to heart by genealogists, especially new researchers.

- "Standards for Sound Genealogical Research" can be found at: http://www.genealogy.org/~ngs/sta ndsgr.html
- "Standards for Using Records Repositories and Libraries" is now available at: http://www.genealogy.org/~ngs/sta ndrrl.html

This is interesting reading. I would suggest that everyone interested in researching their ancestry read these documents and consider them carefully.

The documents are copyright by the National Genealogical Society, but permission is granted for the standards to be republished in their entirety. This means that the copyright notice must be republished, too. So you may republish them in your local society's newsletter and elsewhere.

JOHNSON MCBRIDE

Samuel Edwin Dickey JOHNSON was born about 1817 in SC. He married Margaret MCBRIDE in 1841 in SC. By 1855 they are in Ashley Co., AR, and ten years later they are in Smith Co., TX. There are land records for them in AR and records in TX (Smith and Ellis Co. by 1880). I am seeking earlier records in SC and any other information regarding this family.
