DALLAS GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Old Volunteers Never Die – They Just Find New Projects By Sammie Townsend Lee

The things you can get yourself into when you volunteer! I have always thought volunteering was a good thing, especially when it comes to genealogy. You know, it's that way of "giving back" to a hobby we all love. I've done my share of genealogical volunteering in the past and may again in the future, even though I pride myself on having learned how to say a very effective "No," these days.

Recently I found myself volunteering again, this time to help with a high school reunion. Okay, I admit, I am no longer a "spring chicken." (Also, I admit, I have no idea what a spring chicken is anyway.) Just imagine my chagrin to realize that I had a fortieth high school reunion this year. How could forty years go by so fast? But, passed it had, and being at an age when one begins to feel nostalgic, I located and contacted the committee chair to volunteer to do anything the committee needed.

So what job do you think I was given? The dubious job of hunting for "lost" classmates. I informed my former classmate, Bud, that being a genealogist, I was fairly good at finding dead people, and I would give it a shot at finding live ones. A month later, I must report that it is not the easiest thing to do, but am willing to share what I learned in case you find yourself in a similar situation or are looking for living relatives. Also, if you have been in this situation, I urge you to share your secrets to success.

First I was e-mailed a list of the Justin F. Kimball High School, Dallas, Class of 1963. Those without a current address were marked as "unable to locate." The first thing I did was to compare this list of over 500 names with our Commencement program which showed 414 names.

PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

What a year 2003 was for the society. We've had some really good, informative presentations at all of our Society and CIG events. I want to thank Don Raney, John Wylie and Cindy Burgwin for finding and scheduling the speakers for the CIG and general meetings. They have done (and are doing) an awesome job!

At the annual Awards Banquet in December we honored some of our Life members as well as the Annual Awards of Merit, Volunteer of the Year, Distinguished Service and Heritage Awards. (see photo collage in this edition)

The new year starts off with our coveted DPL "Lock-in" (17 January) the regular January CIG, AAGIG, and Society's General Meeting. We move in to February with our second and last Lecture (7 February) with Henry Z "Hank" Jones. Exciting things right off the bat!

I mentioned previously that we were in the process of reviewing and revising our by-laws. This is something that all societies do on occasion to ensure that they still meet the needs and criteria of the society. The members of the Board of Directors generally feel that our operating year should be the same as our fiscal year, i.e., the calendar year (January – December). This is one of the changes that will be brought forth in the upcoming revision publication (February DGS Newsletter) and presentation at the March 24 Society General Meeting. We hope this change will be endorsed by the membership as we move forward toward our 50th year of existence.

Let's give a big hand to all our volunteers - In December 2003 alone, we had 226 hours.

These volunteers make our Eighth Floor Genealogy Section a place for real research and knowledgeable assistance!!!

We had a great turnout at the December meeting and it takes extra organization and dedication to make this free dinner happen every year! Volunteers who helped with the December Awards Banquet were: Shirley Hawn, Susan Powdrill, Alvin Harper, Cindy Burgwin, Tresa Tatyrek, Betty Erickson, Betty Jean Steinke and Dava Ladymon. Bill Deal handled registration and was the resident photographer.

Did you notice that Betty and Alan Miller had our new DGS pins (white and gold round logo) at this meeting? They will always have a couple tucked in their pockets for you to buy!

Cindy Burgwin is stepping down from the Board this Winter as she is going back to school for a while. We want to welcome Jean Larson, who is facilitating the Beginner's Workshops. We are putting out a call for an interim VP of Education. Volunteers?

Happenings Around DPL's 8th Floor Volunteer Desk

Susan has two openings for volunteers to assist on DPL's Eighth Floor:

Weekly - Friday 3:00 p.m. – 5:00 p.m. 1st Saturday, monthly 3:00 p.m. – 5:00 p.m.

The "perks" are a free library parking pass for the underground lot, working with great Genealogy Department staff, answering questions and helping others with their research and maybe even working in a little of your own family research.

Wylie's Words of Wisdom

Is This the Perfect Software?

Thanks to a recommendation by Gene Burris at the October DGS CIG meeting, after years of searching for the perfect piece of software, I think I found it. GenSmarts is like no other software I've ever seen and now I use it nearly every day.

Quoting from the publisher's website "GenSmarts uses artificial intelligence to analyze your existing genealogy file and produce research recommendations. It helps you generate and track to-do lists, print worksheets to record your search results, and plan research trips to libraries, court houses, etc.

For online research sites, GenSmarts produces links that already have your ancestors name and specifics embedded - making it much easier to perform online record lookups."

Unlike many pitches for software, this one delivers on its promise. It can read most of my databases but, for those it can't read, GenSmarts will accept a GEDCOM file and still produce its very impressive recommendations lists.

We in DGS should really love GenSmarts as it instantly finds resources in the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library including call numbers.

GenSmarts needs at least a Pentium II, with 32MB of RAM, running Windows 95, so it should run on most computers used by DGS members. If you're not sure, come to a CIG meeting and we'll help you determine if your computer can use this new software tool.

Give it a try. Just visit www.gensmarts.com on the Internet and download the trial version. If it isn't worth the price of $25, just uninstall it from your computer within 30 days and move on to other things. I have no affiliation with the GenSmarts people, and seldom get excited about new software, but this one is a winner. At least to me.

DGS LECTURE SERIES

7 February 2004 Henry Z "Hank" Jones Jr. FASG

Going Forward Into the Past: A Genealogical Celebration

Hank, a professional genealogist since 1965, has been elected a Fellow of the American Society of Genealogists (membership limited to 50 worldwide). He is a Charter member and former Director of The Genealogical Speakers' Guild, the author of seven books including Psychic Roots and the Palatine Families series. He had a 25-year acting career in motion pictures and television, including eight Walt Disney movies and numerous other films and network TV programs.

Lecture Topics:

- When the Sources are Wrong!
- Tracing the Origins of Early 18th Century Palatine Emigrants
- Family Traditions: How to Separate Fact from Fiction in Genealogical Research
- How Psychic Roots became an "Unsolved Mystery!"

This is a wonderful opportunity to enjoy an event in the exciting new Charles W. Eisemann Center in Richardson, Texas. We promise you will enjoy the elegant setting and ambiance.

The Eisemann Center is just off N. Central Expressway (US Hwy I-75) between Campbell and Renner Roads at 2351 Performance Drive, and next to the Renaissance Hotel. See their website at www.eisemanncenter.com.

Garage parking will be available at reduced rates of $4.00, but you are encouraged to take the DART Red Line to the Galatyn Park Station, adjacent to the Renaissance Hotel and the Eisemann Center.

For lunch: Choose to visit a restaurant in the immediate area, bring your own "brown bag" lunch or pre-order a box lunch prepared by the Appe-Teaser Catering Company. These were delicious at our previous lecture! Use the registration form to pre-order a lunch, as no extras will be available at the event.

Old Volunteers Never Die...

I discovered about 100 of the "unable to locate" names were not people who actually graduated in our class. The list had been compiled over years from a number of different sources. So, I determined to concentrate on those that I knew were graduates of the Class of '63.

How to go about this? My first stop was on the Internet at a website called Classmates.com (www.classmates.com) Here you can register for your high school and class year. Many former classmates had indeed registered on the Kimball 1963 page. Beware, there were people listed who did not graduate that year, but for one reason or another felt associated with that class. Registration on that site is free, but to be able to truly access the information you must pay a modest membership fee. I immediately joined and sent e-mails through the Classmates website to all those on my "unable to locate" list that they had listed.

The problem with the Classmates.com solution is that e-mails change quickly, you have no control over sending the e-mail (it is done by the website) and you don't know how many people you actually reach. Nevertheless, in the following week I was contacted by twelve "missing" classmates, all providing their current mailing addresses. This website also allows the posting of information about upcoming reunions and contact information, which I entered into their website.

Kimball High School also has an alumni web page for the years 1960-1970, which I had previously located by using www.google.com and putting in the words "Justin F. Kimball High School AND Dallas." On this site a former student can register for his or her class year and leave contact and personal information about their life. Some had done so and this yielded another seven or eight "missing" classmates. I also filled out the information for our upcoming reunion on this site.

My next step was to go to Yahoo's site called "People Search." This is a phone number/address service offered by the popular search engine www.yahoo.com. This proved to be a very helpful tool. Most genealogists have used just such a telephone-based search engine. If you have not, once you enter a surname in People Search, you will receive a listing of addresses and phone numbers for people with this surname on your computer screen. You can narrow the list by indicating state, city, first name – there are numerous variables to qualify your search.

The thing that proved to be the most helpful to me is that once a name is entered into People Search, it is also entered into a companion search engine, called USSearch the same page. on This is a pay-for-public (www.USSearch.com). records search database, but it can be used as a "research tool" free of charge. The definite piece of information I knew about each classmate was their age of 57/58 years old. USSearch asks for the age of the person being sought after. Many times, I was able to scroll the list looking for people with a certain name and age and was able to pick out the person I needed. The free aspect provided me with their city and state. With this information in hand, I could go back to People Search and narrow down my search responses after proving the city and state information. Often this yielded the address and phone number of the classmate. Sometimes it vielded several people of the same name. Calling these people on off-peak hours on my cell phone located many of the correct classmates and we had some great conversations.

Finding females can be a genealogist's worst nightmare. It was for me as well. It helped that I had the married surnames of many of my female classmates from their attendance at previous reunions. However, many were listed with outdated addresses. Discovering new addresses without knowing the husband's first name was an obstacle. I needed to know the full name of the spouse. This is where the Texas Marriages database proved helpful. At www.genlookups.com/texas_marriages/ you can locate marriages that occurred in the state of Texas between 1966 and 2001. As most of my classmates would have been marrying about 1966 or afterwards, I was able to locate the female and whom they married in many cases.

Then once again, back to People Search, to insert the husband's name and continue the search. This yielded many lost female classmates.

In all, I identified new addresses for about fifty "unable to locate" classmates. The reunion was on Saturday, September 6, 2003. I had a ball and was gratified each time I ran into someone that I had located. My best "find" was an old friend from my school days who has been living in Albany, Georgia for the past twenty years. He and I had a great time reconnecting and remain e-mail correspondents. I now have an invitation from his wife and him to visit them in Georgia. I think I'll go!

When is your next reunion? Or perhaps you can use some of these techniques to locate a missing, living cousin?

Holiday and Awards Party

DGS' December General Meeting was the annual. We honored some of the following special DGS Members.

A few of our Life Members, L>R: Barbara Baylis, Michal Martin-Farmer, Laurie Wharton, Elizabeth "Pinkie" Feigl, and Adrienne Jamison

The Lloyd de Witt Bockstruck Distinguished Service Award was given to Marjorie Bays for her consistent and significant contribution to the field of genealogy over a period of years.

Mrs. Bays was a teacher in the Mesquite Independent School District for over twenty years before joining the staff of the Mesquite Public Library in 1976.

There she enlarged and enhanced the genealogy section of the library so that it became a major professional for and amateur resource genealogists. Through her efforts the library has received many donations of historical and genealogical information and has gained a reputation for excellence in the genealogy world. Although she has now retired from the library after 23 years, she still works diligently to promote genealogy and history through the Mesquite Historical and Genealogical Society as their Library Liaison.

Marjorie recognized the need for a written, comprehensive history of the town of Mesquite, Texas, and encouraged and participated in the production of the book A Stake in the Prairie, Mesquite, Texas, a definitive work on the area. She compiled and edited the history of the First Presbyterian Church, Mesquite, Texas 1881-1981.

Mrs. Bays was Charter President of the Hiram Bennett Chapter, Daughters of the Republic of Texas, and has served on the Alamo Library Committee of the DRT in San Antonio, Texas. She is an active member of the Richard Bard Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Marjorie has served the community of Mesquite for over three decades in an outstanding manner and contributed greatly to all those families who do research in this area of Dallas County.

The Preservation Award was given to Frances James, Dallas' "Cemetery Lady." This Award is given for outstanding contributions by an individual or group in the greater Dallas community for preserving our historical or archival heritage.

Mrs. James is well-known for her work in preserving and restoring cemeteries and historical buildings in the Dallas County area. After she retired from twenty-seven years with Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in 1978, she began participating in a cemetery clean-up in her neighborhood and realized what history was being destroyed by vandalism and neglect. She then began working to help save many old cemeteries, such as Freedman's Cemetery on Central Pioneer Cemetery in Expressway and the downtown Dallas. She has researched many Dallas buildings and worked to obtain Historical Markers for them, sometimes saving them from the wrecking ball. Frances speaks to many groups, sharing with them the history of our County, the cemeteries, and old buildings.

Frances James served for six years on the Dallas County Historical Commission, worked as a volunteer for the Planning Department of the City of Dallas, and is currently serving as historian on the Dallas Landmark Commission.

Mrs. James is a past president of the Dallas County Pioneers Association. She works with the Boy Scouts of America in order to help them achieve the goal of Eagle Scout by helping them to inventory and replace many grave markers. Frances leads bus tours managed by the Dallas Historical Society to many cemeteries in the Dallas area, sharing their history with all who care to learn.

DGS' Volunteer of the Year was presented to Mel Brewer. This award recognizes a member for outstanding volunteer service to DGS during the preceding Society year.

Mel Brewer has been a member of DGS for some time. Last year he stepped up to the plate as a Board Member to utilize his extensive business background to help with some key issues. Knowledge of non-profit organizations and financial issues made his input invaluable to us.

DGS' Award of Merit was presented to Shirley Hawn to recognize her as a DGS member who has made outstanding contributions to the Society over a period of years.

Shirley Hawn has served on the DGS Board, written numerous articles for the newsletter, and is always ready to lend a hand and add a touch of class and grace to any of our events.

Gene and Gay Bethel

Heather Williams presented Dallas Public Library's Award of Excellence to Gay and Gene Bethel for being outstanding volunteers for the Genealogy Section of the library.

Ask The Retoucher

We hope you enjoy an excerpt from Eric Curtis M. Basir's Ask The Retoucher column.

Wilber asks:

"Do you have any information from the classes you teach on Adobe Photoshop Elements? I am trying to learn how to use these programs."

Answer:

Yes, but my handouts are in outline fashion so they would be somewhat useless for you.

However, I require them to purchase a book called Teach Yourself Visually Adobe Photoshop [or] Photoshop Elements by Woolridge. It's a wonderful book. It's brief, full of diagrams and photos. It's just the basics, but perfect for beginners. You can find the book almost anywhere books are sold.

Just so you know, you can download free trials of Adobe Photoshop and Adobe Photoshop Elements at: www.adobe.com/support/downloads/main.html

Edith asks:

"What is the difference between a TIFF, BITMAP, EPS and JPG? Why would you save something as one over the other? For example, you scan in a photo or drawing into Photoshop -- what format do you save it in and why?"

Answer:

These are all different formats to save photos or other artwork for various types of output or publication.

TIFF or TIF is a reliable format to save photos in. It retains all detail and is universally understood by graphic software programs worldwide. Although it offers a lossless compression scheme, the file size tends to be large. However, don't let large file size determine if you plan to save in .TIF. I personally recommend that everyone archive their work using this format.

Bitmap---the file format---is similar to TIF, but it's the standard file format for Windows and DOS compatible computers. Various sub-settings are offered, including a lossless compression scheme called RLE. However, unless you completely understand the difference between Indexed Color, RGB, 4-bit and 8-bit, don't change the settings. Bitmap--the image mode--is different in that it gives the photo the appearance of a heavily contrasted photocopy.

EPS is a format used for photos and drawings to be used in page layout programs for publications. The format allows fonts and crisp lines without jagged edges. This format is good for artwork created in "vector" and layout creation software.

JPG is used for photos that need to be sent through the internet or displayed on web pages. It makes files very small and fast to send. However, it compresses the detail and color, causing damage to the photo. It can be dangerous to archive photos in .JPG format. I recommend ".TIF" for archives.

Did you know some of these file format names are actually acronyms?

- TIF: Tagged Imaged File Format
- EPS: Encapsulated Postscript
- JPG: Joint Photographic Experts Group

WORLDCONNECT TIP:

EXCLUDING NOTES FROM YOUR GEDCOM

Q: I want to submit my GEDCOM to WorldConnect but my genealogy file contains personal notes about my family members. How can I exclude these notes from my WorldConnect file? A: Create your GEDCOM with the notes intact, then go to the page to submit your GEDCOM to World-Connect http://worldconnect.genealogy.rootsweb.com/cgi-http://worldconnect.genealogy.rootsweb.com/cgibin/igmuser.cgi

Create a user code and password, then click on the button for the Standard set-up page. There you will be prompted to provide information about what to include and how to process your file. Item #12 on the Standard set-up page asks whether you want to include all notes, delete notes for the living, or delete all notes. Select "all" and the notes will be removed from the publicly displayed file for ALL entries in your file.

The benefit of submitting the intact GEDCOM and allowing WorldConnect to delete the notes for you is that two copies of your GEDCOM are maintained on file - one for public display that includes only the data you have specified, and a second that is not displayed that contains all the data you submitted.

The intact version of your file is available only to you, the submitter, should you ever need to download it to replace lost data on your own computer. It is the perfect back-up.

CAN YOU FIND OBLIGATION, MARYLAND?

Let's say you learn from an old family Bible that your ancestor was living in Obligation, Maryland, in 1872. No one living today has ever heard of the place, and you cannot find it on any contemporary map. You must find out where Obligation is/was before you can search for your forebears in county records or the federal census. What do you do next?

As Gilbert Bahn reminds us in his book, American Place Names of Long Ago, place names fall out of usage for a variety of reasons. Suburban development has buried many a town or neighborhood under the "wheels" of a bulldozer. Sometimes residential land is flooded to make room for lakes or reservoirs. In such cases, many locations have either been abandoned or absorbed into other jurisdictions.

Place names come and go for other reasons, too. Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, took its name from a popular radio program. The town of Malverne, New York, jettisoned its original calling, Skunk's Misery, in favor of a more salubrious image. No matter why place names disappear, however, genealogists must locate them in time and place before they can move on in their research. Fortunately, whether you are looking for Obligation (which happens to have been in Anne Arundel County, Maryland); Moose Meadow, Connecticut; Kismet, Tennessee, or some other pre-20th-century place name, Mr. Bahn's book is an excellent place to start.

American Place Names of Long Ago, in fact, is a republication of the Index to "Cram's Unrivaled Atlas of the World, as Based on the Census of 1890." Arranged by state and thereunder, alphabetically by locale, this virtual gazetteer comprises an index of over 100,000 place names of "every county, city, town, village, and post-office in the United States [showing] the population of the same according to the Census of 1890." Thus it is not only an exhaustive source of long-ago place names but also a rare repository for geographical and demographic information extracted from the lost federal census of 1890.

If your ancestor is associated with a town, body of water, or landmark known to have existed before 1890, American Place Names of Long Ago may be the best tool for finding that place name and, ultimately, the correct town or county in which to do your research.

www.genealogical.com/item_detail.asp?ID=225

Following is a short list of excellent regional finding aids to American place names. In addition to American Place Names of Long Ago, one of these directories might point you in the right direction.

Hayward's The New England Gazetteer contains descriptions of nearly 10,000 places---counties, towns, villages, rivers, bays, streams, islands, and so forth---scattered among this six-state region.

A Geographic Dictionary of Massachusetts (low in stock) This work consists of some 5,500 designations of places and topographical features, each identified in relation to a town or county or other prominent location. The entries are arranged in strict alphabetical order and are keyed to U.S. Geological Survey atlas sheets.

Gazetteer of the State of New York (1860)

French's unsurpassed GAZETTEER is a complete history and description of every county, city, town, village, and locality in New York. Information given for each locality includes founding (and founders), early settlements (and settlers), historical sketch to the time of writing, prominent and representative citizens, stories of general and local interest, and names of natural and man-made topographical features.

Gazetteer of the State of New Jersey (Temporarily out of print) Gordon's is the standard 19th-century gazetteer for New Jersey.

A Gazetteer of Virginia and West Virginia

This book consists of extensive alphabetical lists of Virginia and West Virginia place names (more than 12,000 altogether) and assists the researcher in pinpointing a particular ancestor in a specific locality. A Gazetteer of the State of Georgia

Roughly half of the volume is devoted to detailed descriptions of places in Georgia---counties, towns, villages, post offices, rivers, streams, creeks, mountains, ridges, peninsulas, islands, missionary stations---many of which are no longer in use but are likely to crop up in a genealogical investigation.

Lincoln High School Commits to Restoring Historical Cemetery by Dr. Pamela Hill

Jerry Chambers, Industrial Cooperative Training coordinator at Lincoln High School, says he is obsessed about what he calls the Silent Souls Project. Adjacent to this South Dallas high school is a historic cemetery, dating back to 1895, when the first enslaved African was buried there. The clean-up project is called Silent Souls because, according to Chambers, the cemetery is silent but the voices can be heard of those ancestors laid to rest crying to us to complete this [clean-up] project. The late Rev. L.B. Nelson, former pastor of the Salem Baptist Church, started a mission to clean-up the cemetery in 1965. He passed away in 1968 with the project unfinished.

Chambers is determined to complete this mission and not only clean-up the cemetery, but hopes it will be confirmed as a historic site.

The City of Dallas has estimated that there are over 2,500 burial sites in the L.B. Nelson Cemetery, as it is now called, which actually has three cemeteries on the twelve-acre property. In 1911, J.P. Starks of the People Undertaking Company purchased Woodland Hills for $1,000.00. I. G. Pinkston was a trustee of the Glen Oaks and W. G. Bock, a white veterinarian, had Hillside, which also had a pet cemetery on the site; only a line of bushes separates the dead animals from the ancestors who are buried there.

Chambers' interest started when he wanted to know where Rev. Nelson as buried and thought that since he began the cleaning of the cemetery, he would be buried there. "As I began to track him, I found him [buried] in George Washington Carver cemetery, about 15 miles away, in Ferris, Texas. Walking through the GWC cemetery, I saw some gravesites of many of the old heroes of Dallas and I wondered why they were not buried in Woodland, Glen Oaks, or Hillside cemeteries." I began to research this.

Now, in the Freedman's cemetery, the oldest marker found was dated 1860, and only one stone found in the L.B. Nelson cemetery dates back to 1895. J.P. Starks, who owned Woodland, died in 1923.

The J.B. Nelson cemetery was not put on the [Dallas] city map until 1935. Therefore people were buried from 1895 through 1935, and many are unknown," said Chambers.

The Lincoln High School faculty and students are determined to make L.B. Nelson a historical cemetery and are trying to gain support from the Dallas community. (There are several members of our AAGIG that participate and promote this project.)

Hispanic Organization for Genealogy And Research

HOGAR was privileged to be featured in the Dallas Morning News November 1, 2003, Saturday issue within the section "Texas Living." The article was researched and written by Hector Cantú, Special Contributor.

The title of the article, "A Fruitful Family Tree," discloses the surprises and a rich heritage that awaited three HOGAR members, who searched for their ancestors.

Comments from Art Garza revealing "Missing Branches" are presented in the article as follows:

"With help from HOGAR, Latinos are filling in the missing branches of their family trees - finding lost relatives, uncovering family lore, and, maybe more important, discovering a sense of place and pride.

"We have teachers, doctors, retired military people," says HOGAR president Arturo Garza. "They're all just trying to trace their family history. They want to find out where they come from."

HOGAR membership includes about 60 families, says Mr. Garza. They attend conferences, exchange information with other genealogy groups and have access to a large collection of documents - such as birth and death certificates, marriage licenses and baptismal records - collected by HOGAR's senior members. "

MASSACHUSETTS GENEALOGICAL RECORDS (570,000 entries)

The research value of this CD, with its 570,000 entries, is evident in its sweeping coverage. The majority of the books featured on this CD deal with vital records, passenger lists, censuses, and military records of a slightly later era, including the first two censuses of Massachusetts for 1790 and 1800.

♥ NOTABLE BRITISH FAMILIES (550,000 entries)

Along with an electronic search engine, or index, this Family Archive CD contains images of the pages of the most celebrated works ever published by Burke's (excepting only the various "Burke's Peerage" volumes). While most of the volumes included here deal with British lineages, at least two deal with the British origins of American families. In all, the CD names over 550,000 individuals.

Good Will, Good Words, Good Works From Buckner Orphans Home to Buckner Benevolences

An historical exhibit highlighting 125 years of Buckner Benevolences

Monday, February 9, 2004 Reception begins at 5:00 p.m. Program - 6:00 p.m. t 7:00 p.m. Dallas Public Library Seventh Floor 1515 Young Street, Dallas, Texas

Please R.S.V.P. by 2 February 2004 Buckner Benevolences Sandy Stephens, 214-758-8052

A little history –

R.C. Buckner was a poet and a pastor; an editor and an orator. He used words to instill a sense of urgency and need among his fellow Texas Baptists to rise up and care for the widows and orphans of the state. His words were driven by a passion for the task and a compassion for needy souls. Perhaps no one was motivated by the words of R.C. Buckner more than Buckner himself.

His peers and contemporaries knew Buckner as a man of ceaseless energy and drive. He traveled Texas campaigning for the formation of an orphans' home, speaking at every stop. He found an ally in Texas Baptist deacons. After a series of letters, he called for the formation of a Texas Baptist Deacons Convention, which convened in Paris, Texas, in 1877.

At the meeting, Buckner sponsored a resolution to begin an orphans home as soon as $2,000 could be raised. Those present that day named him the fundraising agent for the project. Two days later, Dr. Buckner collected his first funds, $27, when he passed a hat among "fellow brethren" visiting under the shade of an oak tree. The first dollar given was his very own. By the end of 1879 he had collected $1,200, which he supplemented with a personal bank note. On April 9, 1879, a charter was filed with the Secretary of State and in December of the same year, Buckner rented a small cottage in East Dallas to care for the first three orphan children.

But even from those earliest days, the vision of R.C. Buckner was far beyond just the accumulation of land and the building of structures. His was a vision for helping children and families put together the broken pieces of their lives. For Dr. Buckner, that meant much more than simply housing those who were homeless.

Dr. Buckner was heavily involved in community and state affairs. In 1877, he founded the first high school in North Texas for African-Americans. He was instrumental in establishing the Dallas Humane Society and served as its president. He founded Children's Hospital in Dallas in 1894, and he was one of the driving forces behind the opening of Baptist Memorial Sanitarium, now Baylor Healthcare System, serving as president of the board from 1904-1908.

Within his own Baptist denomination, Dr. Buckner became the most prolific leader in the history of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, serving as president of the BGCT longer than any other individual in history.

Come to this free exhibit to learn more about Dr. Buckner, his dream and Dallas history.
