The Spouse's-Eye View

Neither rain nor snow nor mis-labeled bundles . . .
Or . . . Stacking and Sacking the *Journal

by Ernest P. Williams

The lengths we sometimes go to in order to enable our wives to stay busy! Like any good DGS spouse, I want mine to be successful and stay active and busy, and to that end, I agreed to help with mailing the Dallas Journal, which she had edited. Little did I know what it would entail. I thought I had already done a pretty good job, for example, staying off of the computer when she was slaving away on it, but the release of it to a large waiting audience was the culmination of a lot of work. Little did I know, but should have guessed when the van rolled up the driveway, and the driver wheeled 25 heavy boxes into the house and stacked them on the den floor.

My job started easy enough, "go to the grocery store and pick up some muffins." When I got back, feeling pleased with myself for handling my part of the work so efficiently, the organization was in full motion, and my next job was to stare in amazement at the 45 post office bags lying by the closet.

The labeling, packaging and mailing of the DGS Journal is no small task. It can be broken down into three categories: the technical and teaching function; the repetitive label removal, sticking and stacking function; and the lift that, bring that, take this stack over there function. After considerable deliberation, my part was the latter portion. My job was to open and position the boxes of books one box at a time handy to the labelers, then grab two rubber bands and place them around a stack of books (about 5) one way and the other way. I give myself a B minus on the opening and stacking, as sometimes I was busy rubber banding, or stacking, and sometimes I just overlooked that the labelers had run out. I was able to do the rubber banding pretty well, although at a later restacking, it was discovered that on several bundles, I had placed both rubber bands in the same direction, probably a B plus. And on the stacking, I think I deserve an A minus. Most of the ZIPs were in the right stack, but some of the colors should have been in another pile. Most of the stacks leaned only a little.

PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

Are your ancestors elusive? It's so easy to get caught up in the search for new records that we forget to stop and do a thorough analysis of what we already have. Karen Clifford reminded us in her lecture that organization and analysis of our genealogical material is just as important as the search. If you didn't get a chance to attend her lecture take a look at her free lessons on the website: www.graonline.com/. You can learn to save time and money by not searching for information you already have.

Have you attended one of the seminars this year? Yes, DGS charges to attend these seminars. The 'profit' made at these seminars is the basis for donations we make to the Genealogy Section of the Dallas Public Library. However, there are more benefits than that to attending one of these events. It can give you a wealth of new ideas for your research. For instance, we have the opportunity to learn even more about analysis and methodology at the Summer Institute at Mining For Genealogical Treasure. We have three outstanding speakers this year: Lloyd deWitt Bockstruck, FNGS, Patricia Law Hatcher, FASG, and John A. Sellers. From newspapers to courthouses, Masons to Methodology, and beyond, you will not want to miss the fun time July 27th to July 30th in the Auditorium of the Dallas Public Library.

Welcome to the DGS Board our two newest members: Susan Holman, Volunteer Coordinator and Sharon Gayle, Parliamentarian. Both of them have enthusiastically stepped in, rolled up their sleeves, and started work immediately. Susan has been a volunteer on the desk on the 8th floor of the library and brings that experience to the job as Volunteer Coordinator. Sharon is relatively new to DGS and the board but brings a wealth of other work experience. When you see Susan and Sharon congratulate them on their new positions and thank them for their service.

As this newsletter goes to press, we just held a successful Seminar on The Master Genealogist Software (where 55 attended) and our February general meeting. At the General Meeting, the Bylaw changes as published in the newsletter passed with no modifications. As a result of those changes, we now have a new board position, Director of Special Interest Groups. I have appointed John to fill the position until our elections next November. If you have any ideas for a study group or have a group of members that would like to meet to talk about research in a certain locality be sure to contact John at SIG@dallasgenealogy.org.

There are still many opportunities to help run the Dallas Genealogical Society. Please let us know what talents you can share. I once was helping a Family History Center patron locate an ancestor and found my own in a part of the county where I did not expect to find him. You just never know where your ancestor might show up.

DGS GENERAL MEETING USUALLY MEETS ON THE FOURTH MONDAY

Our monthly meeting begins at 7:00 p.m. with our speaker presentation to follow about 7:30 p.m.

Brian Collins was born in Metairie, Louisiana in 1977 and grew up in the state's capitol, Baton Rouge. He attended Louisiana State University beginning in 1996 and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in print journalism in 2000. After working as a reporter for a weekly newspaper in Ascension Parish for several months, Brian enrolled in the graduate history program at L.S.U. and received his M.A. in 2002. While conducting research for his thesis, he became intrigued with the "stuff of history" – i.e., archives – and started to work on his Masters in Library & Information Science at L.S.U. Before graduating in December 2003, he finished a practicum of study at the Louisiana State Archives, learning preservation techniques, conducting preservation work, and preparing a finding guide for the John Gasquet photograph collection. In April 2004, he joined the staff of the Texas/Dallas History & Archives Division of the Dallas Public Library as an archivist.

Do you need a WIG? (Writing Interest Group)

Do you want to write? Need to write? Is it time for you to stop collecting data and start to write about what you've got? Would the support and encouragement of a like-minded group help you?

If you answered, "No," you've probably stopped reading. But if you answered, "Yes," help is coming. Sometime about the middle of May, Ann Melugin Williams will convene a Writing Interest Group. This won't be a class but a needy group to help each other write and publish. All you need is data and the desire to "do something" with it.

If you are interested, please contact Ann at 214-375-6043 or melugin708@sbcglobal.net.

Interested in AV? Here's Your Big Chance!

As DGS expands the number of Special Interest Groups, a new volunteer opportunity has opened. If you're interested in selecting, managing or operating audio-visual equipment please contact John Wylie at 972-206-2723 or sig@dallasgenealogy.org.

QUAKER QUARTERLY DIGESTS, ENGLAND AND WALES
BY PATRICIA LAW HATCHER

The Quaker Digests of Registers of Births, Marriages, and Burials for England and Wales, circa 1650–1837 are 32 rolls, filed in the Locality section under England. Quakers were careful record keepers, recording vital events in their monthly meetings, then reporting them to the quarterly meeting, where they were recorded in digest (register) form.

Quarterly meetings included the monthly meetings in one or more counties and generally coincided with the county or counties in their names. However, some towns and parishes were assigned to a monthly meeting in an adjoining county, and some monthly meetings were assigned to the quarterly meeting of an adjoining county. These exceptions are listed in the Guide to Microforms at the reference desk.

Although there are some earlier entries, record keeping did not become extensive until the late 1660s and early 1670s. Once civil registration began in England and Wales in the third quarter of 1837, the quarterly digests were no longer necessary and were discontinued.

Records are chronological within first letter of surname, in columnar format. Not all columns are filled for each entry. The registers are neat and legible, with good microfilming. There are both a register and a supplemental register for each record type (i.e., six registers per quarterly meeting). London and Middlesex Quarterly Meeting and Yorkshire Quarterly Meeting, which were both very large, each have two birth, marriage, and death registers instead of one. A detailed listing of the registers on each roll is in the Guide to Microforms binder at the DPL reference desk.

Birth ledgers have columns for the book and page of the entry in the monthly meeting, name of child, date of birth, place of birth, names of parents, parents' abode, occupation, name of monthly meeting, and a column to note "N.M." for "Non-Members."

Marriage ledgers have columns for the book and page of the entry in the monthly meeting, name of bride or groom (thus there is one entry for every bride and one for every groom), residence, description (occupation, widow, etc.), names of parents, parents' abode, to whom married and their residence, where married, date of marriage, and name of monthly meeting.

Burial ledgers have columns for the book and page of the entry in the monthly meeting, name of deceased, date of death, age, residence, description (occupation, widow, "son of" or "daughter of" for children), name of monthly meeting, date of burial, place of burial, and a column to note "N.M." for "Non-Members."

Even if you do not know the county of origin for your Quaker immigrant ancestor, these records are so easy to search that you can check all quarterly meetings in a few hours, an effort that can be well worth your time. Many Quaker immigrants were recently "convinced" [converted], though, so don't be surprised if they don't appear in the registers. If you do find entries for an ancestral surname, check the Family History Library Catalog for microfilm for the monthly meeting. Not very many of them have been microfilmed, however.

If you know the county of origin, you can go directly to the pertinent microfilm, but if you suspect missing records, check the port from which your ancestor might have departed. Often entries for families are found in both the London and Middlesex Quarterly Meeting and in their local meeting.

The registers can give us unexpected insight into ancestral lives. Occasionally, the burial registers of London mention the death in prison of someone who had been incarcerated for "testifying." Like the burial registers of the Church of England, they also provide stark evidence of the effect of the plague. Between February and May 1665, there were only a handful of burials recorded, more in June, but in July and August, they filled the pages. After early September, when the Great Fire of London burned out both residents and the rats that carried the disease, the number of burials plummeted.

HARRIS COUNTY, TEXAS HISTORICAL COURT DOCUMENTS Patricia Haynes

As many of you know, I work as a paralegal, so I often do research on court web sites. I recently was looking for something on the Harris County District Clerk web site. I noticed a link to Historical Documents, so of course I stopped my "real" work and decided to check it out.

I was pleasantly surprised to see that the Harris County District Clerk's Office is now preserving and imaging its historical court documents and placing them online. Some date back to the 1830's and contain names you all will recognize, such as Sam Houston. As is often true of documents which have been imaged, some pages are better quality than others. The site contains documents from about 1837-1912 and include District Court Minutes, both civil and criminal, Guilty and Not Guilty Judgments, and Criminal Minutes Naturalization Proceedings Only. There are some indexes for most of these documents. These are provided at no charge. I highly recommend reading the section Records Preservation Overview while you're on the site.

Of course, Court Minutes do not give you all the information you might be seeking about your Harris Co. ancestors, but, as they say, it's a start. Once you know that a case exists, if you are lucky, you might be able to get the entire court file to review for your Harris Co. ancestors.

To get to the historical document images, go to the following web site: www.hcdistrictclerk.com. On the left-hand side of the site's menu bar at the top, click on Historical Documents and enjoy. Now if we can just get other counties to do the same!

Wylie's Words of Wisdom:
HANDLING DATES

I've been married much too long to give advice on romantic dates so this is going to be about calendar dates. Besides, Barb tells me that first dates should never be handled. (I'm sorry, the keyboard just took control. I've wrestled it back and can now write about genealogy.)

We genealogists fall prey to believing we must write dates properly. We type in the calendar day in two digits, the three-letter month followed by the year in four numbers. For example, Barb and I report our wedding date as 12 Aug 1978. This works great for database software and consistency in narratives. It avoids the confusion of seeing 8/12/78 and not knowing if that was 12 August or 8 December or in what century it occurred. (Barb is much too young to have been married in 1878.)

How SHOULD we report dates? The simple answer is "just as we found them". If a document shows something happening on 8-12-78 than that's how we should initially record it. We can also enter what we believe (or even know) the correct date to be, but we document dates as we find them.

Perhaps a short story will help. Long ago, I found this sentence in a letter written by the aunt of the person being researched: "Effie's boy was born in Altus Saturday after the blizzard of 98". I already knew that this birth took place in Altus, Oklahoma. Upon contacting a weatherman at a local TV station, I established that Altus has experienced a severe blizzard 6-8 December 1898. I calculated that the child was born on the 10 Dec 1898.

The question is how to report the birth date in genealogy. My opinion is to report it both ways, thus: Studley Koolbreeze was born 10 Dec 1898 as reported by his aunt Mary who wrote "Effie's boy was born in Altus Saturday after the blizzard of 98." In other words report the date as you found it and as you calculate it.

Date Qualifiers: When you don't know an exact date use a qualifier. If you get a date containing a qualifier from another researcher, use that qualifier and cite the other researcher as your source. Dropping date qualifiers creates a level of exactness not intended or supported by the evidence. Qualifiers are as essential as the numbers in the date.

The most common qualifies are: 'ca' or 'c' for circa, 'about', and 'est.' or 'say' for estimated (or calculated.) Other important parts of a date include; 'before', 'after', 'between' (sometimes a hyphen is used in lieu of 'between') 'spring of', 'summer of', 'fall of', 'winter of', 'early', 'late' and so forth.

Another date issue is when a date needs to be reported as a decade or century. My preference is to use the plural. So a nineteenth century event would be shown as 1800s or an event that took place in the second decade of the 1800s is shown as 1820s. Don't use an apostrophe between the numerals and 's'. (See Chicago Manual of Style, 13th Edition, p. 239.)

Software Trap: Don't let your software limit you. If it requires you to enter dates in very limited ways, use the notes field to explain the date, or change to a more helpful software.

– John Wylie

Or . . . Stacking and Sacking the Journal

by Ernest P. Williams

The colored label that went on each banded stack was selected by the boss*. She was the only one qualified to make this decision.

I thought that it would facilitate the rubber-banding of the stacks to place the bands on the near edge, and roll them up to approximately midway in the stack, which rolled the rubber-bands over and over. Jokingly I said, "Next I'll have to straighten out the rubber bands." The boss said, "Yes, sometimes we do that." She wasn't joking! This process (the banding) accounted for the paper cut injury I sustained, but I didn't cry or stop, just went bravely on.

"Ours not to reason why—ours but to do or die."

Boxes of books in—sacks of books out

We had stacks in the den, the dining room and the front hall, sorted by ZIP code, then by color tag orange or green, and sometimes two other colors that I forgot.

Next we sacked the same sort, putting about the same number (weight) in each sack which had a ZIP code-preprinted tag.

Then, my job was to take the sacks to the front door (but I decided that to avoid an extra step, I would just go on out and put them in the bed of the truck). I unceremoniously grabbed the sacks by the nape of the neck, lugged them out into the yard and swung them up into the bed of my '92, 2500 long bed extended cab Chevy pickup. When the tailgate was covered, I would climb up into the bed and reposition them toward the front so that I could use the tailgate again as a staging area.

I was none too careful in rearranging the load to the front, placing the sacks wherever there was a hole in the load. This turned out to be a mistake, because when we got to the post office we had to remove the sacks in ZIP code order to the weighing buggies. To do that, we had to examine those little ZIP code tags on each of the bags to remove them in the right order. I'll never know how they could have gotten so mixed up on that seven-mile ride from the house to the post office.

We were to take the sacks to the Bulk Mail Post Office, which I insisted was the building that the post office designates as the Bulk Mail Center on Hampton and I-30. No, this Bulk Mail Post Office is at the Main Post Office on I-30 east of Sylvan. Afraid that I would slip off to the wrong location, I could lead the car caravan as far as I-30, where our leader took the lead to pilot us to the right place.

We counted the sacks again. Don't know what we would have done if one had fallen off the truck, and satisfied that none were missing, I was released while Betty Jean and Terry [Reep] pushed 35 sacks on two double-decker carts into the building. I have no idea what had to be done there but was confident that they could handle it.

Who knew there was so much involved in mailing DGS literature? And the whole thing is done about 20 times a year but usually with shorter stacks and lighter sacks. Tell Terry Reep [Director of Mailings, 2006] thanks the next time you see her.

*Betty Jean Steinke, past DGS Director of Mailings.

Betty Jean and Doug Steinke at their new home in Georgetown, Texas. Thanks for all you've contributed to DGS and best of luck in your new locale.

FROM OUR READERS:

I saw this web site in the Fort Worth Genealogical Society newsletter which seems very useful: www.pddoc.com/copyright/genealogy_copyright_fundamentals.htm

Also, the Portal to Texas History at the University of North Texas has access to 100,000+ pages of Texas historical content. You can read the books online at texashistory.unt.edu/

Two Successful Events and More to Come

The January Lock-in on January 28th was run by Jeri Steele, due to the death of my grandmother in Michigan. There were 80 people, including staff, in attendance at the lock-in. The volunteers for this event were Jeri Steele, Tresa Tatyrek, Sharon Gayle, Sharon Henry, Deborah McVean, Bill Dow, Jr., Jim Stone, Pat Stone, and Clara Lewis. Library personnel were Lea Markoff, Lloyd deWitt Bockstruck, Fred Davis, Patrick McKinney, and Ed Boehring. I want to thank everyone who volunteered and especially those who stepped in at the last minute to make the Lock-in a success.

The Internet and Genealogical Methodology Seminar by Karen Clifford, AG, FUGA on February 4th was very successful with 154 total participants. Kudos and thank yous to the volunteers for this event: Bill Deal, Don Raney, Marti Fox, Jeri Steele, Tresa Tatyrek, Alvin Harper, Elizabeth Diehl, Sharon Gayle, Dava Ladymon, David Ladymon,

Next on the calendar is the Immigration and Urban Research Seminar with Gladys Friedman Paulin, CG on March 4th [which will have already been completed by the time this newsletter comes out]. More details can be found on the DGS website, along with tentative plans for the Summer Institute: Mining Genealogical Treasures. The website is www.dallasgenealogy.org

Did you know... by Bill Deal

During the nineteenth century, one man described his early education in Indiana as going to school “by littles”—a little now and a little then—“and his entire schooling amounted to no more than one year’s attendance.” Abraham Lincoln went on to become our 16th President.

Alvin Sez:

Admitting the Obvious

You think you got problems? Consider the plight of this poor soul:

His ancestor John Jones married Mary Jones.

John’s parents were John Jones and Mary Smith.

Mary’s parents were John Jones and Mary Smith.

The poor man is in a quandary over how to prove John and Mary were not related, especially since neither John nor Mary had siblings.
