FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

I have enjoyed the experience of publishing this issue of The Quarterly. The experience has been invaluable.

I appreciate the contribution and help I've received from Helen Lu, physical and moral. Without her assistance this issue would not have been printed.

I am looking forward to future issues. They should be interesting and fun. I hope you will be looking forward to them with as much enthusiasm as I am.

The Quarterly needs your contributions and assistance in proofing and gathering material, and ideas for features to run. This is your quarterly. What would you like to see in it? We also need books to review and queries. We will try to run as many queries as we can. So please send them to the post office box.

EARNEST BAPTIST CHURCH RECORDS

Submitted by Jeanne Tabb

These records are from two ledgers of the Earnest Baptist Church near Tipton, Tillman County, Oklahoma. The Church was dissolved in the late 1930s and these ledgers were saved from the fire by Newman Hudson Williams of Altus, Oklahoma, whose mother was the last clerk of the church. The last record is missing. The spelling is phonetic, writing is in pencil and very hard to read. The columns are for names, how and when received, how and when dismissed, remarks. The letters in column 2 are: L - letter, B - Baptism, S - statement. Column 3 dismissal has: L- letter, D - death, E - excluded. Not all names have notations beside them. In the handwriting the letters "L" and "T" are very hard to distinguish. I have combined the ledgers as the same names repeat frequently.

DOING RESEARCH IN THE BODLEIAN LIBRARY OF OXFORD, ENGLAND

Being a transcript of a talk given to the Dallas Genealogical Society at its meeting of September 24, 1981 by Mrs. Kay Gunn.

Mrs. Kay Lee WRAGE GUNN is a private researcher working on the GUNTER family in the South and on the LEE family. She is a member of Michael Stoner DAR chapter in Dallas. She gave a copy of her speech and copies of the forms she had to use to get into the Bodleian to the Dallas Public Library Genealogy section.

I would like to thank you for the opportunity to speak with you tonight on my recent experiences at the Bodleian Library at Oxford. I have jotted down genealogical information and my impressions of the place in the weeks following my return. My reactions are fresh, and I hope will be helpful to any of this group that contemplates research in Oxford. I am not a trained speaker, so much of this talk will be read to you. I hope this isn't annoying, and that you will bear with me in this respect. There are areas of detailing in my talk that make boring listening unless you are highly interested in specific geographic areas of England. I will not linger over these, but have made a tape recording of this talk which I will leave behind so that anyone who might want to recheck specifics can do so.

The Bodleian Library has over 4,300,000 volumes in the three entities of which it is comprised: first the "Old Library" where I did my research, in that section known as Duke Humphries Library; second, the Radcliff "Camera"; and third, the "New Bodleian Building." The three buildings are now connected by tunnels and a book conveyor the length of the Reading Rooms and book stacks. Of this complex, only the Divinity School is open to the public. The three buildings are quite close to one another, so that one could easily move from the one to the other, if desired.

It must be apparent that in a library of these colossal dimensions, anything like an accounting of the resources in any given area of interest, genealogical or otherwise, would require a long-term research project in itself. It simply isn't possible to lay before you in any truly comprehensive sense the genealogical resources available here, because the Bodleian itself doesn't keep an all-inclusive accounting. It simply lists the Oxfordshire, Berkshire and Buckinghamshire data it houses, that is, local records. What can be done is to give you a detailing of what the Bodleian itself calls its genealogical data, and add to that gratuitous discoveries that I made along the way which would be of broader interest, and in addition, to tell you as well, other genealogical resources available in the City of Oxford, lying outside of the Bodleian itself, because if you venture there, you should explore the citywide resources, as well as those of the library itself.

First comes to mind - - local information: the Bodleian is replete with specific genealogical data from Oxfordshire, Berkshire and Buckinghamshire. The Bodleian Library is the diocesan record office for pre-1974 Oxfordshire, and so houses many important manuscript records, such as parish registers and Wills, transcripts and indexes of county records from this area in its present and in its past geographic dimensions. Breaking down these categories into their components, I will accompany this enumeration with frequent references to publications offered by the Oxfordshire Family History Society, hereafter referred to as OFHS and to their primary publication, The Oxfordshire Family Historian, otherwise referred to as OFH. If any of these publications are desired, you may contact the Society's membership secretary, Kay Mary Beck, 90 Hockmore Tower, Cowley Center, Oxford, OX4 3YG. For specific publications, order from Mr. Tony Insul, 23 Tubbs Close, Kings End Vista, Oxford, who is specifically responsible for publications of the OFHS. If you wish greater detail than I give you here myself respecting Oxford, refer to the publication entitled "Genealogical Sources Within the Diocese of Oxford," OFH I No. 1, also to the Oxfordshire Genealogical Section of the open shelves in the Bodleian Library-Selden Inn, OFH Publication I,4. The phrase "Selden Inn" refers to the South end of the Duke Humphries Library at the Bodleian.

The following short group of resources will concern themselves with materials after 1800: civil registration, births, marriages and deaths in England and Wales after July of 1837, censuses - 1871, 1861, and 1851. Of interest to some researchers is they will often take you back before the inception of civil registration, and even into the 18th Century. The census of 1841, which is also available, is useful, but does not give place of birth or exact age. Also mentioned are local newspapers of which Oxford's first is Jackson's Oxford Journal, started in 1753. A comprehensive synopsis and index exists for this publication up to 1790. There are copies of the synopsis at the Oxford central library, and in the Bodleian, which also has copies and microfilms of the local newspaper. Of greater interest to most of you -- Parish Registers. Before 1837, the main source for genealogical information is the registration of baptisms, marriages and burials maintained by every parish. These can, and often do, go back as early as the mid-16th Century - - 1538 is there official starting date. About 140 Oxford Parish Registers, under File R.7.3/11B are now deposited in the Diocesan Record Office which for Oxfordshire pre-1974 is the Bodleian Library itself. Berkshire pre-1974, the Berkshire Record Office at Redding. There are also annual returns called "Bishop's Transcripts," which provide a duplicate of the Registers, though they are often less detailed and accurate. For Oxfordshire, these are all at the Bodleian, and for Berkshire, they are at the Wiltshire Record Office at Trowbridge. There are modern copies, often typed and indexed, of many registers and : Bishop's Transcripts.

Concerning Oxfordshire, Duke Humphries Reading Room, R.3.540. The Family History Societies are very active in this field. Oxfordshire has a particularly good collection. Copies are in the Bodleian, in the Oxford Central Library, and at the Oxfordshire Record Office at County Hall, and as well at the Society of Genealogists, 37 Harrington Gardens, London SW 7 4JS, a body which it would be well worth joining if you were able to get to their South Kensington Rooms and unique library. For more details, refer to the publication Oxfordshire Parish Registers, Deposited Originals and Transcripts, published in 1979, regularly updated in the OFH.

Marriages: Bonds by Bishop of Oxford, 1634-1954, by Archdeacon of Oxford, 1618-1856, and by officials of the Peculiars are in the Bodleian, Section II 6, Diocesan Records in R.7.3/11a. For more detailings, refer to the publication, Marriage Indexes, OFH I, 9. Also in the Bodleian is the microfiche of the Computer File Index compiled by the Mormon Church, which includes literally millions of names and baptisms and marriage registers throughout the whole country, a recently compiled and expanding tool of revolutionary import to genealogists. Refer to the publication The Computer File Index, OFH I, 7.

Wills: When they exist, Wills and their associated records since 1858 have been registered and indexed centrally for England and Wales at Somerset House, Strand and Central, London. However, printed annual indexes, 1858 through 1928, are now available in the Bodleian. Before 1858, Oxfordshire and Berkshire Wills are likely to be found in one of two places, the great majority will be in one of the collections in the Bodleian. However, Wills of the gentry and wealthier tradesmen probably were proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. Indexes to PCC Wills prior to 1700 have been published and can be consulted in the Bodleian. A consolidated index, 1750 through 1800, is in the course of publication, A through Z published to date.

The probate records of Courts of the Bishop and Archdeacon of Oxfordshire, 1516-1857, of the Archdeacon of Berkshire, 1508-1857, The Peculiars of Oxfordshire, Berkshire and Buckinghamshire, 1550 through 1858, are deposited in the Bodleian, and contain most Oxfordshire and Berkshire Wills proved locally.

Let me linger here to the extent of imparting information about the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, otherwise known as the Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury, mentioned previously, otherwise known as PCC. For those of you not already familiar with this institution, it has superior jurisdiction in all of England, Wales, the Isle of Mann, Channel Islands, and sole jurisdiction where testators had bona notabilia, that is, an estate valued at more than 5 pounds sterling, into a diocese or into peculiars, in the Province of Canterbury, or within two provinces, that is York and Canterbury. The Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury also had jurisdiction over all those with property in England, Wales, the Isle of Mann, the Channel Islands, who had died at sea or overseas. This makes an investigation of PCC Wills so uniquely compelling for American genealogist. Testators having died at sea or overseas were distinguished in the calendars by the entry "Pts." an abbreviation for "Parts Overseas" instead of the name of the place. During the commonwealth period from 1653 through 1660, this Court had sole testamentary jurisdiction over all of England and Wales. Since the Reformation, it has been usual for the estates of men of wealth and position to receive Grants of Probate and Letters of Administration in this Court. During vacancies in this Court, between 997 and 1590, some Wills were proved in the Court of the Prior Chapter of Christ's Church Canterbury, Kent.

Returning specifically to Oxford once more, the Bishop and Archdeacon of Oxford had concurrent jurisdiction over all of the county except for the Peculiars. The records of these two Courts are combined. The Court of the Chancellor of the University of Oxford had juris-dition over all matriculated persons with bona notabilia within the precincts of the University. All probate searches in the City of Oxford and its environs should include the records of this Court. The original records of the Court of the Bishop and Archdeacon of Oxford, the Courts of the Peculiar Parishes of Vander and Dorchester, and the Court of the Manor of Sidford are at the Department of Western Manuscripts, Bodleian Library, Oxford. Those for the Court of the Chancellor of the University of Oxford are at the University Archives, the Bodleian Library, Oxford. For more details on PCC Wills, refer to publication "Series A, No. 14, 1978 - Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints."

Some Berkshire Wills are at the Wiltshire Record Office of Trowbridge. For further details on this area refer to the publication Pre-1858 Probate Records of Oxfordshire and Berkshire Testators, OFH I, 9. The Bodleian, depending on the standing of the family during the interlude being searched offers a wide range of additional published works: The Dictionary of National Biography, Berk's Peerage and Landed Gentry, the Oxfordshire and Cambridgeshire alumnae, professional and trade directories. For further information, refer to the publication "A Genealogical Bibliography of Oxfordshire, Berkshire and Buckinghamshire", published in 1978, and to OFH I, 5. This latter work, a publication of the Oxfordshire Family History Society entitled "The Oxfordshire Family History," which has been previously cited to you.

The County Records Office: In most counties, the County Record Office is also the Diocesan Record Office, as it is in Berkshire. But in Oxfordshire there is a separate County Record Office, as has been mentioned, in the County Hall Building in New Road, adjacent to the Central Library. This houses civil, as opposed to ecclesiastical, records, including quarter-sessions records and a vast miscellaneous collection of deeds and other documents. There are excellent indexes to the many collections from Oxfordshire families, estates and solicitors. Refer to the publication "Genealogical Sources in the Oxfordshire County Record Office," OFH Publication I, 5. The previously enumerated resources for the Oxford Area are many, but they do not include others of great interest.

Poll Books: of those entitled to vote in Parliamentary Elections; the Hearth Tax of 1665, which listed all Oxfordshire households; the protestation returns of 1641, a petition signed by most adult males in the County; pedigrees of arms-bearing gentry submitted to heralds in the 16th and 17th Centuries, otherwise known as "Visitations"; unpublished material, includes the forms of accounts kept by parish officials; apprentice bonds; law suits, poor records; the list is endless.

As I was thumbing through copies of a defunct publication, The East Anglian, New Series Volume I, September, 1886, Part 21, devoted to subjects connected with Counties Suffolk, Cambridge, Essex and Norfolk, a then monthly publication, I came upon the following which I will gratuitously include for its reference to material in the Bodleian: "The Candler Manuscripts. In the Middle third of the 17th Century, when England was convulsed with rival faction, political and religious, the gentlemen of Suffolk, or some of them, at any rate, were busying their studies writing the pedigrees of their friends and neighbors, and etc., Candler began jotting down the pedigrees of the Kings of England and the old nobility, but he did not stop here. He went on to the great Suffolk families, their contemporaries, and gave their descent as he knew of them. And then he entered his own pedigree; his wife's pedigree, his brothers-in-laws and sister-in-laws, and indeed the pedigrees of all of his kindred. By and by he took up with his friends' genealogies, and as many of them were Puritan clergymen like himself, he tersely recorded notable passages in their history, and he was honest with it all, and etc.,....but their chief value is the evidence they afford as to the true English ancestry of many an American emigrant in the 17th Century. To the New Englander this particular manuscript, and its fellow in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, occupy a position not utterly dissimilar to the Herald's Visitations with us. Indeed Candler's information was the more valuable in that it affords some times the only clue the American genealogist has to act upon. That Candler gives us what we find nowhere else, the pedigrees of families clerical and landed, just below the Visitation rank, is another testimony to the great and almost unique value of his writing."

Wonders such as the Candler manuscripts would be, I am sure, a not infrequent find among the Bodleian treasures, given a will to delve for them. After all, the Bodleian is privy to every published book in the United Kingdom, and God in His wisdom only knows the full extent of their resources laid end to end. Such as the Candler Manuscripts would not be listed by the Bodleian as part of their specifically genealogical data. Nevertheless, they, and many another are there.

I would like to move from the specificities of the foregoing data to a much more generalized glimpse at the Bodleian from my personal point of view. Starting at the top, let me recommend that you stay at the Randolph Hotel in Oxford if you plan Bodleian research, because of its proximity to the library. From the Randolph to the heart of the University area, a walk by our measure is only three or four blocks. However, do not make the mistake of asking directions in blocks, or you will probably get only a blank stare. City distances are not taken in blocks in England, but usually by reference to well-known landmarks, and by the latter method you might be directed from St. Giles Street at the hotel, South to George Street, turn East on Broad Street until you reach the Sheldonian Theatre. At the Sheldonian if you can resist the temptation to enter this beautiful theater, you simply skirt the East side of the building, walking past it to the entrance of the Bodleian Quadrangle. This is the old library area, and the home of the bulk of the antique genealogical data in the repository. This routing will also take you past the world-famous Blackwell Book Store, where an hour will be wellspent in examining their county and city histories and map sections. This would also give you a good look at the denizens of the surrounding university - - dons, graduate and under-graduate students who will be milling around in Blackwell's and the neighboring shops that serve the colleges which comprise Oxford University. This gets you to the Library physically, but it takes considerably more effort to get you into the Library with access to its use.

The first step in the entry process is to make contact with a certified, or at least a well-known, genealogist in England who can vouch to you with the Library at the Bodleian. This definition might be broadened to include well-know "antiquarian," or other person of sufficient stature of recognition to establish your identity as a serious reader. To initiate this process, you write the Librarian, Bodleian Library, Department of Western Manuscripts, Oxford, England OX I 3BG requesting a recommendation form, and enclosing an envelope addressed to yourself with money for airmail postage. In the course of time when this requested form is sent to you, you are to sign it with your customary signature, preferably that same appearing on your passport, and forward it to your recommender. He or she fills out the form in his own hand, and forwards it to the Librarian for approval. To facilitate the process, supply the recommender with an envelope addressed to the Bodleian Librarian and a similar one for the Librarian addressed to yourself, so that the approved form can be returned to you.

This rather involved exchange take time to accomplish, and you should allow two to three months for the process. I would think that the recommender should be an Englishman, if you hope to accomplish your end, as the Librarian has got to be able to recognize without much effort the party in question. In any event, an Englishman as recommender would doubtless be preferred. I can make no recommendation to you about the person or genealogical concern from whom to get a letter of recommendation, as this implies a relationship of some standing. Any English genealogist willing to recommend you will of course have to have had correspondence or contact with you to an extent that warrants the request.

For the sake of brevity, let's assume that the foregoing has been accomplished, and that you have your recommendation form in order, and have arrived in Oxford ready to research. The next step in the chain of entry is to bring the completed form to the Old Library in the Bodleian, to the entrance marked "Scola Musica" on the South End of the Bodleian Quad during library hours, Monday through Friday, 9:30 to 12:30 in the morning, 2:00 through 4:30 in the afternoon, or on Saturdays, 9:30 to 12:30 in the morning. The Bodleian is closed on Sundays, Good Friday, Easter Eve, and Easter Monday, the week of the late summer bank holiday, weekdays preceding Christmas Day, December 25th through January 1st, with the exception of the Radcliff Science Library on the day of the Incania, which is the first Wednesday in the University's long vacation.

Alongside the completed form, be sure to take your passport or your driver's license, which are the simplest of several possible secondary identifications that are requested, any of which must bear either your signature or your photograph, or both. The actual entry process takes approximately thirty minutes, so be prepared to fume a little. The don admitting you may well be late in unlocking the Admittance Office, or you may be precede in line by a number of readers. In any event - - be prepared to fume a little. The process of admittance is irritating in itself, as I experienced it. The gowned don who recieved me took his sweet time in examing all my credentials, and was visibly disappointed that he could find nothing wrong with them. He was a man eager to exercise his authority negatively, as his subsequent comments proved. I had prepared myself to face a bit of vanity and a pinch of arrogance in this sanctum sanctorum of scholarship; but I had not prepared myself to face a covert skirmish of wits as part of the initiation process. After he had reluctantly approved my credentials and accepted my forms, I asked "Would it be all right with you if I took home one of these blank admission forms? I think there might be friends of mine in Dallas who would want to make application." His true feelings became unequivocal at this point as he answered me "Yes, you may take a form, but we really don't want people from Dallas, or from anywhere in the States coming over here to use the Library. They would probably try to send a recommendation from the Sheriff of Dallas, or something like that!" Clearly he was looking for an excuse for his comment. It took my utmost self-control to keep from reminding him that it had been the Rockefeller Foundation that had supplied the bulk of the million pound cost of the new Bodleian Building in 1940, that Americans should be welcomed here with open arms, instead of subjected to indignities. But I bit my tongue---after all, I hadn't come all this way to be chucked out the door, so I fed him mock innocence, "Yes, I feel sure you have to keep your guard up against things like that!" In those last seconds my droll tone must have betrayed me a bit, because he cut his eyes in an agitated way. I hadn't given him cause to refuse me entry, but he began to suspect a double entendre in my remark, that I had momentarily played him for a fool. He wasn't used to challenge, and he didn't know quite what to do about it.

I was required to read the Library's lengthy rules silently in the don's presence, and to read aloud the customary oath, which includes a commitment not to steal, vandalize or set fire to the Library, among other enjoyments. By itself, the reading of the rules and oath-taking are unworthy of added comment, but the don's insinuating and provocative attitude most definitely are! At the end of the declarant oath, I looked up full into his eyes, and with the blandest expression at my command added an improvised addition of my own "Amen!" One last time he looked at me with a raking glance, not sure whether I was expressing colonial innocence and stupidity, or controlled sarcasm. I never gave him the satisfaction of knowing which, but signed my admittance card in silence and took my leave of that nasty man!

Certainly not all my contact at the Bodleian had this unpleasant tone, but there is a free floating paranoia in the place, possibly warranted, that one is perhaps an incipient arsonist, a possible vandal or thief. You will simply have to take this as part and parcel of the whole experience, and try to keep it in the perspective of the colossal resources available to you. Expect your carrying case, satchel or purse to be searched on entering and leaving the Library at each visit, and the heavy gaze of the Library staff on your back as you work. I found this not unbearable, but a chronic nuisance.

Up the circular stairway that leads to Duke Humphries Library, at the top of the Old Library Building, through the portals marked "Arts End," you can handle the original of most any manuscript in the repository given certain procedural means. The Library prefers you to work from books on the open shelves, or from microfilmed copies of original records, as you might expect --but, on special request will bring up from the archives most any document that you seek. This latter call takes about two hours, so allow for it if you want to handle original data. Allow yourself enough time, as it is going to take time both to locate and to request material, and to go through the rather elaborate processes of getting it. A welter of differing forms exist for differing purposes, and each is accompanied by a welter of directives governing its use. Microfilm, manuscripts, books not on open shelves, coping processes, all have individual request forms and acquisition processes. There is a minimum 24-hour delay for any copied instrument, even be it so simple as Xerox-ed copy. There are no copy machines in the Library, so be prepared to get writer's cramp before you leave the place.

Many of the particulars of my own interest, I requested copied and forwarded to me at home, rather than trying to deal with them during my stay. If your time is limited, you would do well to know precisely what you are after, and something of how to get to it before you get there, some of which will be tended to through correspondence with the Librarian in advance. Towards this end, I have brought you copies of all the forms and directives that came into my hands during that stay. And if I haven't scared you to death about this place -- perhaps you'll have a look at them. I'll leave the portfolio here for you to keep.

The upper reach of the Library is filled with a race of troglodytes, who rarely see the sun or sniff fresh air. I secretly suspect that some of the Library natives live under the counters, or in the musky cubicles, where you can catch periodic glimpses of them bent in earnest pursuit over some corpus of blotched 15th Century manuscript. They give short shrift to anyone not master of at least two dead language, and don't really want to be bothered with bumbling outsiders. But despite all these drawbacks, the incredible resources of the place, and the helpful young students who work the desk and will aid you in any way possible, make up for much. In a general sense, these young helpers will do a lot more for you than any erudite scholar of the place.

I hope that this information has been of enough general interest to sustain the evening. Thank you.

DALLAS, TEXAS, A BIOGRAPHICAL GUIDE TO THE SOURCES OF ITS SOCIAL HISTORY TO 1930.

By Harvey J. Graff, Charles Barton, Alan R. Baron, The University of Texas at Dallas, 1979. 54 pages, 6" x 9", hardbound.

The title of this book is misleading. It not only contains information about the city of Dallas, but about Dallas County and the State of Texas. For each of these geographical areas, primary and secondary sources are given. The titles are listed and the depository or institution where the records are held follows.

The Texas genealogist will find titles under these sections especially helpful: Land Grants and Boundary Surveys, Tax Records, and Vital Statistics. And what researcher can resist these records: Index of Assumed Names, and Dallas County Jail Book Prior to 1942?

An informative little book. No price information available.

THE STOUT-HEARTED GENEALOGIST - MELANCHOLY CATASTROPHES, AWFUL AFFRAYS, INFAMOUS ACTS. Compiled by Judith Rush. Available from: Rush Research, 136 Washington St., Delaware City, Delaware 19706. 94 pages, 9" x 11½", soft bound. $10.50, includes postage.

If your research has bogged down in the period of 1840 to 1860, try this source. If you want to experience the news as your ancestors experienced it, scan this book. Or if you think you've seen every type of genealogical book, flip through these pages.

This book consists of crimes, all graphically described, which were reported in local papers across the nation. All surnames are capitalized and underlined. An example of the contents: 1) Richmond, VA, Oct. 1851, Richard CUDLIPP dropped an egg from the upper tier of the theater on the head of Thomas A. RICHARDS. Later, during a dispute over the incident, CUDLIPP put a knife into Richard's heart, 2) Sacramento, CA, April 1851, Charles H. MYERS broke up a fight in which four men had ganged up on one lone man. One of the four, Fredrick J. ROE, shot MYERS. "MYERS was a sober, industrious citizen from Columbus, Ohio, where he leaves a family.

Hangings, rapes, suicides, and murders - they're all here; also, the time, place, and the participants are listed. Beginners note: Read the Foreward. It explains the numbering system and also the indexing system. Do not let the name of the newspaper (N.Y. Weekly Tribune) that these crimes were extracted from slow your research. Remember, these crimes were originally reported in newspapers all across the United States.

TEXAS AND ITS FLAGS. The Daughters of the Republic of Texas. Available from: Mrs. Florine Railing, 4209 Mendenhall, Dallas, TX 75234. 18 pages, 5½" x 8½" soft bound. $1.50, includes tax and postage.

Texans and adopted Texans will appreciate this little book. It is a capsule history of the State of Texas as depicted by the flags that have flown over Texas. Included are the battle flags: Ward's flag and Captain Scott's flag. All flags are shown in color. There is a short section on the rules governing the use of the Texas flag and the Texas State Memorial Days. An informative little book for every Texan.

Charles would appreciate any correspondence with any descendants and/or friends of some of the children of Goin C. RICHARDSON (1804-1870) and his second wife, Nancy J. HARRISON (1814-1881). Martha J.C. married Lucian L. BARTLETT; George W. married Carolina RILEY; William J. married Mary DAVIS TINCHER; Augustus A. married Delphian HAPKINS; Annie married Dr. Victor HENDERSON; Charles A. married Harriet C. WARD, Helen married James Charles BRITTON. These children are but 7 of the 17 that were born to Goin and Nancy. I have substantial information on many of the other brothers and sisters as well as extended data on the parents. I would very much like to share and/or exchange this and other data I have accumulated over the years on this line of RICHARDSONS. How about you???

BLESSINGTON

I am researching the name BLESSINGTON. I would like to hear from descendants of Joe (1845- pre 1900) and Agnes (born 1847) BLESSINGTON. Children were William, 1869; Mary R., 1871; James F., 1873; Charles A., 1877; Ellen, 1879; Agnes K., 1880; George H., 1882. The family lived in Waco, Texas, at least between 1880-1900. I would like to hear from any BLESSINGTON descendant, any time, any where.

FUTURE PUBLICATION - Cemetery Inscriptions of Dallas Co., Texas

For the past three years our Society has been involved in locating the cemeteries in Dallas County, and the majority of the inscriptions have been copied. We are now in the process of getting the first volume typed and ready for publication. We estimate there will be 3 to 5 volumes of these inscriptions to be published over the next few years.

Many of our out-of-town members and readers of The Quarterly and newsletter have anxiously waited the completion of this project. We appreciate your patience.
